I. The Microfilm Edition of the Margaret Sanger Papers

A. Introduction

Margaret Sanger (1879–1966) worked to ensure that all women had both the knowledge and the right to practice birth control, a term she helped coin in 1914. From the publication of the Woman Rebel in 1914 through her leadership of the International Planned Parenthood Federation in the 1950s, Sanger dedicated herself to making birth control safe, available, legal, and respectable. Charismatic, passionate, and daring, Sanger engendered intense debate and controversy throughout much of her life. Yet her efforts to educate women about the need for birth control and to provide them with the most up-to-date information and materials despite stringent legal, moral, and religious prohibitions on the dissemination of contraceptives, helped bring birth control out of the shadows and into the light of public debate and social policy. In the process, she produced a massive body of papers—letters, diaries, journals, reports, articles, speeches—a vibrant record of one of the most important women and most significant social movements of this century.

The richness and diversity of Margaret Sanger's papers reveal the broad range of birth control advocates and opponents, the ideological and organizational transformations, and the conflicts, debates, and compromises that have marked the history of the modern birth control movement. Her correspondence includes exchanges with radical and socialist supporters, sexual reform advocates, birth control activists, writers, eugenicists, physicians, philanthropists, politicians and world leaders, as well as scores of women seeking contraceptive information. Sanger's organizational records document the changing methods and goals of the birth control movement as reflected in such bodies as the American Birth Control League, the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau, the National Committee on Federal Legislation for Birth Control, as well as the Planned Parenthood Federation of America and the International Planned Parenthood Federation. Legal and government documents offer detailed accounts of Sanger's championship of First Amendment rights and her battles to overturn state and federal Comstock Laws, as well as the legislative history of the birth control movement. Her extensive writings and speeches reflect her unflagging commitment to advancing the cause of birth control and promoting her often controversial ideas about such issues as sexual liberation for women, marital relations, population, and war. Sanger's private papers are no less significant as they reveal her in the roles of daughter, sister, wife, lover, friend, and mother, and offer a portrait of a woman who was at once loving, engaging, and dedicated, as well as egotistical, ambitious, and ruthless.

Informed by movements for women's rights, social welfare, eugenics, public health, First Amendment rights and civil liberties, international population control, and sexual freedom, among others, the fight for birth control is one of the most significant social and political movements of this century. This microfilm edition of Margaret Sanger's papers offers an extensive resource, not only for further study of the development of the birth control movement, but for understanding a wide range of legal, medical, political, and economic issues.

The Margaret Sanger Papers Microfilm Edition is a publication of approximately 50,000 documents available on 101 reels. The Margaret Sanger Papers Project has collected, identified, and microfilmed these documents in two series: the Smith College Collections Series and the Collected Documents Series. Used in conjunction with a third, previously microfilmed collection (145 reels) of Margaret Sanger's papers housed in the Library of Congress, these three series constitute a comprehensive record of Sanger's life and work. The Smith College Collections Series (83 reels published in 1995) consists of some 40,000 documents drawn from the large collection of Margaret Sanger papers and nineteen other collections of manuscript and archival collections located in the Sophia Smith Collection and College Archives at Smith College. This series incorporates extensive correspondence, writings, and organizational records chronicling Sanger's career as the founder and life-long leader of the American and international birth control movements. It also contains rich documentation of her personal life, friendships, and family. The Collected Documents Series (17 reels plus one addendum reel[1] microfilmed in 1996) consists of almost 10,000 documents that Sanger Papers Project staff have located and collected from repositories around the world. Included in this series is a considerable amount of Sanger's outgoing public and private correspondence as well as essential early documentation of Sanger's work with the American Birth Control League, which she founded in 1921, and which later evolved into the Planned Parenthood Federation of America. The Collected Documents Series also contains records tracing Sanger's international work in the 1920s and 1930s and her later role in helping to found the International Planned Parenthood Federation.

The third series of approximately 60,000 professional and private Sanger papers microfilmed by the Library of Congress in 1977 offers detailed representation of Sanger's international efforts for birth control and her clinical and political work with such organizations as the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau and National Committee on Federal Legislation for Birth Control. It also includes many of Sanger's diaries, articles, speeches and pamphlets, and substantial early correspondence with colleagues, family, and friends. While this collection has not been refilmed by the Sanger Papers Project, it will, for the first time, be described in a reel guide and indexed. When complete, the reel descriptions and index for the Library of Congress Series will be integrated with those produced for the Smith College Collections and Collected Documents Series. The complete integrated three-series reel guide and index will be published by University Publications of America in 1998. What follows is the reel guide and index to the Collected Documents Series.

B. Creation of the Collected Documents Series

The Collected Documents Series is the result of a ten-year international search conducted by the staff of the Margaret Sanger Papers of some 1,500 repositories and private collections in the United States, Western Europe, and Asia, augmenting the two large but incomplete parent collections of Sanger papers at the Library of Congress and Smith College. The search included mail queries of 1,309 collections and on-site visits to 269 repositories. Photocopies of close to 10,000 documents were gathered from major women's history archives such as the Schlesinger Library, Radcliffe College; medical history archives such as the Francis A. Countway Library at Harvard University and London's Wellcome Institute for the History of Medicine; and manuscript collections at the National Archives, the New York Public Library, the Sir David Owen Population Centre at the University of Cardiff, and the British Library, among many others.

[1]Some 1,000 additional documents arrived at Sanger Project offices after microfilming of the original 17-reel Collected Documents Series was completed. These additional documents were arranged in chronological order (without regard to subseries) and filmed on an addendum reel (reel C18). However, the documents on this reel are indexed in the same subseries arrangement as the documents on the other 17 reels. (See Section IX: Introduction to the Index for more information on the arrangement of the index.)

In addition, the Margaret Sanger Papers obtained documents from several family planning organizations such as the International Planned Parenthood Federation, the British Family Planning Association, the Family Planning Association of Japan, and the Riksförbundet för Sexuell Upplysning (Sweden) as well as from the private collections of many of Sanger's family members, friends, and associates. The Collected Documents Series also includes documents from the collection of Margaret Sanger's papers at the Library of Congress that were not included in the 1977 microfilm of that collection, along with documents from eleven other manuscript collections at the Library of Congress. Finally, it includes documents located or deposited in the Sophia Smith Collection subsequent to the publication of the Smith College Collections Series in 1995.

The collected documents were then carefully photocopied, analyzed, identified, and verified before being divided into the same five-subseries arrangement created for the Smith College Collections (see Section II, B: Arrangement for description of these subseries). In most cases the photocopied images are as clear as the originals. Photocopies were enhanced or transcribed in cases where the image was of very poor quality.

Woman Rebel, reprinted in Alex Baskin, ed. The Woman Rebel, (Stony Brook: State University of New York, 1976); also microfilmed as part of Periodicals on Women and Women's Rights (Bethesda: University Publications of America).

The Collected Documents Series covers the years 1911–1966 and offers a considerable amount of Sanger's correspondence covering her early years in New York and through the world wars. It includes a large number of letters to her close friends Juliet Rublee, Dorothy Brush, and Ellen Watumull; her British friend and colleague Edith How-Martyn; and letters to other coworkers, family, and friends that complete gaps in the Sanger Papers collections at Smith College and the Library of Congress. The Collected Documents Series also contains a significant amount of material on the American Birth Control League, which is not well documented in the other two series, and the International Planned Parenthood Federation, as well as important records of many of the other birth control organizations that Sanger established or led. In addition, this series contains important writings, including all issues of Sanger's journal Woman Rebel, legal and legislative materials covering Sanger's early battles, and extensive documentation of Sanger's international work and travels.

D. Note on Use and Copyright

This series consists of manuscripts and published texts drawn from many sources. Targets, filmed above each document, identify the specific archive, private collections, or published source from which each document was drawn. Permission to publish documents included in this series has been granted to the Margaret Sanger Papers Project by the repositories or individuals that hold the original documents and wherever applicable by the owners of the literary rights. Every attempt has been made to contact all owners of the literary rights to these documents.

Use of manuscripts in this microfilm edition are governed by the same restrictions that apply to researchers consulting the original manuscripts. The author of a book or article may quote brief excerpts in his or her published work, subject to the provisions of the federal copyright law, but no item may be published in its entirety without the express permission of the manuscript holder and the owner of the literary rights. No microfilm reel may be reproduced on film, in whole or in part, for any purpose without the express permission of University Publications of America and the editor.

E. Acknowledgements

The editor is indebted to the many talented people who helped to make the Margaret Sanger Papers Microfilm Edition: Collected Documents Series possible. New York University, principal sponsor of the project, has served as our administrative, editorial, and research center since 1987. We are grateful to all those in the Department of History who made it a comfortable and creative environment in which to work. Professor Carl E. Prince, co-director of the project and former chairman of the history department at New York University, ensured the project's survival during the early days of our work and continues to be an unfailing source of strength and guidance. His successors as chair, Thomas Bender, the late Warren Dean, Tony Judt, Marilyn Young, and Jerrold Seigel have been similarly committed to and supportive of this project. We are also indebted to New York University History Department faculty members Michael Lutzker, Susan Ware, and Peter Wosh, director of the department's program in Archival Management and Historical Editing, for their advice and encouragement and to Karin Burrell, the department's administrative assistant, for all her help over the years.

Of the many librarians and archivists who helped us in our search, we would like to especially acknowledge the careful and patient assistance of Leslie Morris at the Houghton Library, Eva Moseley of the Schlesinger Library, Julia Sheppard at the Wellcome Institute, Mary Wolfskill at the Library of Congress, and J. Hamisch Richards, Tom Gabriel, and Virginia Blakey at the Sir David Owen Population Centre. Special thanks to Timothy Connelly of the National Archives for helping us to locate and obtain copies of Sanger material from the National Archives and Library of Congress collections. We would also like to thank the reference staff at NYU's Elmer Holmes Bobst Library for their assistance over the years, in particular Michael Hannon and Alfred Lewis in Microfilms for their assistance in securing microfilm readers for the project, and Claire Gabriel, librarian for world history, for her help in acquiring the microfilmed Library of Congress collection.

Our search was also aided by the thorough work of a number of talented on-site researchers who sifted through collections in many parts of the world including Karen Benedict, Kuniko Funabashi, Eileen Gatti, Anke Voss Hubbard, Lynn Johnson, David McDaniel, Cathy McDonnell, Ames Morton, Chiyoko Ogawa, Noreen Roberts, Jessie Rodrique, Sarah Russell, and Kenn Thomas. Translations of foreign langugage documents were done by Elizabeth Atkins (French), Anja Baron (old German), CP Langugage Institute (Japanese and Chinese), Eriksen Translations (Swedish), Marina Haidash (Pitman Shorthand), Greg Jankunis (Japanese), and William Mohr (Pitman Shorthand).

Preparation of the Collected Documents Series would not have been possible without the diligent work of the graduate research assistants from NYU's Department of History: John Berman, Marion Casey, Andrew Darien, Peter C. Engelman, Lisette Fuhs, Eileen Gatti, Melanie Gustafson, Wendy Holliday, Sean Holmes, Cathleen McDonnell, Nancy Mykoff, Daniel Sokolow, Christopher K. Stevens, and Tracy Tullis. We also benefitted from the work of the many editorial assistants who have labored on the project: Jennifer Beckman, Scott Boggins, Sasha Dawson, Gina DeCaprio, Diane DeWindt, Jennifer Duncan, Stan German, Christine Haran, Mark Hellen, Alfredo Ignacio, Sepideh Jafari, Barbara E. Lewis, Ilene Lisak, Stephanie Margolin, Rita J. Mularoni, Hannah Munroe, David Nahass, Isidoros Passalaris, Eva Pollard, Tammy Roth, Melissa Schwartz, David H. Serlin, Deborah Steinbach, Candace Taylor, Jackie Woodruff, and Stephanie Zorn. We also appreciate the work of the interns and volunteers who served on the project in New York: Alice Naughton, Saskia Rozier, Tracy Van Dorpe, Veronique van Weissenbruch, Anja Wilk, and at Smith College, Leslie Fields. Finally, our research was aided by the scrupulous work undertaken by the many students who participated in the NYU Archival Program's graduate seminars in historical editing.

Completion of research for the Collected Documents Series would also not have been possible without the generous cooperation of the staff of the Sophia Smith Collection at Smith College, which has served as cosponsor since the project's inception. We are particularly grateful for the assistance and support of Sherrill Redmon, head of the Sophia Smith Collection; Margery N. Sly, Smith College archivist and coordinator of special collections; Sarah Pritchard, director of libraries; and former staff members Susan Grigg, Susan Boone, Virginia Christensen, and Maida Goodwin.

Special thanks go to the individuals who provided us with access to their private collections as well as leads to new documents, among them Lawrence Lader, Sarah Gamble Epstein, George and Ellen Rublee, Margaret Sanger Lampe, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wilcox, Kurt Goetting, Katherine Bruce, Gordon V. Brown, Hugh T. Cuthbert, Paul Danz, Lewis L. Gould, Martha Jane Starr, Minoru Murumatsu, Linda Magee, James Martin, Constance Menninger, Rosetta Schuman, Cyril Greenland, Lucille Westby, Marion Steinmetz, Helene Ferris, the Watumull Foundation, the late Eileen Palmer, and Mary Lasker.

The Margaret Sanger Papers Project can boast of an outstanding editorial staff. In addition to the three assistant editors of the Collected Document Series, we have been incalculably aided by the dedication and proficiency of past assistant editors Nancy M. Robertson and Jessie M. Rodrique, both of whom exhibited an unusual degree of patience and good cheer in the face of the project's always uncertain future.

Securing adequate financial support is one of the most critical tasks of any editorial project. This endeavor would not have been possible without the endorsement and support of the National Historical Publications and Records Commission and the National Endowment for the Humanities. In addition, the following private foundations provided essential assistance:

American Council of Learned Societies
Mary Duke Biddle Foundation
William Bingham Foundation
Commonwealth Fund

Ford Foundation
George Gund Foundation
William and Flora Hewlett Foundation
Joyce and Seward Johnson Foundation
Joe and Emily Lowe Foundation
New York University Research Challenge Fund
Rockefeller Foundation
Samuel Rubin Foundation
L. J. and Mary C. Skaggs Foundation
H. W. Wilson Foundation

In our fund-raising efforts, we have been guided by the experience and commitment of many individuals, among them Nancy Sahli, Roger Bruns, Mary Giunta, Kathryn A. Jacob, Margot Backus, Douglas M. Arnold, Sheila Biddle, Elizabeth Heffernan, Lynn Szwaja, and at New York University, Ann Greenberg, Marti Dunne, Richard Hatter, and Margaret Cordi. We offer our deepest thanks to the hundreds of individuals whose contributions ensured the survival of the project.

Almost from the start, the editor has relied on the advice and guidance of the project's distinguished advisory board: Ellen Chesler, Elizabeth Fee, Debra Bernhardt, Linda Gordon, Sarah Pritchard, James Reed, Allan Rosenfield, Alexander Sanger, Stuart Sanger, Jill Sheffield, Avabai B. Wadia, Faye Wattleton, Margaret Sanger Lampe, and most recently Gloria Feldt. The Margaret Sanger Papers Project has been the recipient of valuable assistance and advice from many friends and colleagues, among them Lisa Gitelman, for volunteering her time and talent during several crisis points; Gary Chapman, Larry Mingione, and Eray Ekici of NYU's Academic Computing Facility for setting up the project's local area network; Richard Kelly, Sean Duffy, and Jerry Nardelli of ISIS Corporation for their creativity and persistence in designing our computer database programs; fellow editors Ann Gordon, Pat Holland, Thomas E. Jeffrey, Mary Lynn Bryan, and Candace Falk for their wise counsel and good fellowship; and Stephen Crane and Alicia Kaplow for providing legal advice and counsel as well as friendship. We would like to thank our publisher, University Publications of America, and send our particular gratitude to Paul Kesaris, Bill Idol, and Dale Reynolds for their commitment to ensuring that we have the highest quality images on the microfilm.

We are especially grateful to the family of Margaret Sanger for providing us with full access to Margaret Sanger's papers, for sharing their personal knowledge and reflections, and for their ongoing support and encouragement with particular thanks to Alexander C. Sanger, president of Planned Parenthood of New York City, whose door has always been open to us. Special thanks are due Elaine F. Crane and Mary Giunta who are responsible for making the birth of this project possible; to Ellen Chesler who generously shared her research, perceptions, and insights with us; to Martin Duberman and Atina Grossmann for their friendship, support, and assistance; to Nabil Hajo and Kendall Engelman for their encouragement and uncommon patience; and finally, to Terry Collins for her diverse and immeasurable contributions and many years of unwavering support.

II. Editorial Method

A. Selection

The Margaret Sanger Papers Microfilm Edition: Collected Documents Series consists of documents generated by Margaret Sanger or directed to her. It includes all of Sanger's correspondence and writings located in repositories other than those in the Smith College Collection or the microfilm of Margaret Sanger's Papers at the Library of Congress. It also contains a sizeable selection of organizational, conference, and legal materials documenting Sanger's leadership of the American and international birth control movements and other records of activities and events related to her personal life, awards, tributes, travels, artwork, and family. The organizational records include constitutions, boards of directors minutes, annual reports, and other organizational materials.

While the intent of the editor was to construct a comprehensive record of Margaret Sanger's life and work, this edition is not a comprehensive record of the history of the birth control movement. Records were selected only if created by Sanger, prepared under her supervision, or if they pertained directly to Sanger and her activities. Enclosures to Sanger documents, when located, have also been included. The following categories of material have been excluded:

- Organizational records peripheral to Sanger's direction or supervision or records created when she was not associated with the organization;
- Interim records such as monthly minutes or weekly reports if the information was repeated in annual reports;
- Third-party correspondence (unless Sanger was an additional author [such as letters written on Sanger's behalf by her secretary] or unless the letters were written in association with an award, honor, or other activity that directly involved Sanger [such as letters written in an effort to secure the Nobel Peace Prize for Sanger]). Third-party correspondence was also included if it was enclosed with a Sanger document.
- Most serial publications and printed material generated by the various birth control organizations;
- Published versions of Sanger's books;
- Newspaper clippings (unless they were enclosed with other documents or written by Margaret Sanger);
- Routine personal records such as checkbook registers, tickets, receipts, and address books;
- Family papers that do not directly relate to Sanger;
- Research about Sanger;
- Paintings and photographs;
- Duplicate records.

For documents in the Margaret Sanger Papers and related birth control collections in the Sophia Smith Collection at Smith College, see The Margaret Sanger Papers Microfilm Edition: Smith College Collections Series.

B. Arrangement

The Collected Documents Series is divided into the same five subseries as those in the Smith College Collections Series. They are as follows:

Subseries 1: Correspondence (Reels C01–C11)

Sanger's incoming and outgoing correspondence, as well as letters written and received on Sanger's behalf by her secretaries. The correspondence has been arranged chronologically with partially dated letters placed at the end of the appropriate month or year. Enclosures, if found, follow the parent document in most instances. However, if an enclosure is located elsewhere in the edition, a target note will direct the reader to the correct series and subseries location (the reel and frame numbers of that enclosure can then be located in the index). The only letters written by Sanger that are not filed in Correspondence are organizational form letters which are located in Organizations/Conferences (Subseries 2). Third-party correspondence is included in Subseries 1 when Sanger is an additional author or recipient or when the letters are enclosures.

Subseries 2: Organizational Records/Conference Materials (Reels C11–C14)

Organizational records, including constitutions, bylaws, minutes, publications, form letters, and reports created by birth control organizations that Sanger established or led or in which she played a significant role. This subseries also includes proceedings, programs, and other records related to conferences in the United States and abroad that were organized or attended by Sanger. The organizational material has been arranged alphabetically by name of organization and then sorted by category of material (reports, minutes, form letters, etc.) under each organization. The conference material has been divided into domestic and international conferences, then arranged chronologically by conference, and then sorted by category of material within each conference. While most correspondence generated by these organizations and conferences is located in Correspondence (Subseries 1), form letters and organizational memos can be found in Subseries 2 in a subcategory under each organization.

Subseries 3: Legal/Government Material (Reel C15)

Legal briefs, decisions, testimony related to the trials in which Sanger or one of the birth control organizations she led was a participant, and government bills and other material concerning state and federal legislation Sanger sponsored or with which she was associated. Legal and government records are grouped separately, with each group organized chronologically by legal case or legislative bill.

Subseries 4: Writings (Reel C16)

Diaries, journals, speeches, articles, unpublished manuscripts, and statements and miscellaneous writings by Sanger. Writings have been arranged by category of material (journals and diaries, articles and speeches, manuscripts, etc.) and chronologically within each category. Undated writings have been placed alphabetically at the end of each group, as appropriate.

Subseries 5: Miscellany (Reel C17)

Miscellaneous material chronicling Sanger's non-birth control activities, family, homes, and hobbies. Also includes tributes to Sanger, itineraries, calendars, appointment books, a few financial records, and notes and biographical information. Miscellaneous records have been arranged in subject groups.

An effort was made to provide accurate dates for all documents, but a small number remain undated. In all subseries, partially dated documents appear at the end of the month and/or year under the appropriate category. In the case of Correspondence (Subseries 1), letters with no verifiable year have been filed alphabetically by author (and for duplicate authors by recipient) at the end of the chronological run of correspondence on reel C11. For Subseries 2–5, which are further divided into separate document subcategories, documents with no verifiable year have been filed at the end of the appropriate category. For instance, in Subseries 2, an American Birth Control League (ABCL) report without a year is located following all other ABCL reports; an undated pamphlet in Writings (Subseries 4) is located following the run of dated pamphlets.

C. Targets

Each reel of microfilm begins with an introductory target citing the reel number, series, subseries, and span of documents included on that reel, as well as information about the Margaret

Sanger Papers Project and the Collected Documents, and a note on use and copyright. An explanatory target header for each document appears at the top of each frame (see Figure 1 for sample). These targets contain principal information about the document including series and subseries; document date; a document control number; a category heading (for all subseries except Correspondence); author(s) and recipient(s); document type; location at which the document was created; the title of the document (if any); number of frames; source of the original document; a description of the document; and, when necessary, explanatory notes containing any relevant information about the physical condition of the document, image quality, editorial insertions, references to other documents, and enclosures.

SERIES III (Subseries 1 - Correspondence)[1] MSP #: 302000[2]
02/16/1916[4] New York, NY[5]
1 frame(s)[6]

Margaret Sanger[7]; Letter[8] to [Theodore] Perceval Gerson[7]

Title:[9]
Permission to reproduce in any form must be obtained from: University of California, Los Angeles.[10]
Collection: Theodore Gerson Papers[11]

Note(s): Typed Letter Signed.[12]
Interlineations by Margaret Sanger.
For enclosures, see 2:4, Pamphlets, ENGLISH METHODS OF BIRTH CONTROL, 1915 <236708> ; 2:4, Pamphlets, DUTCH METHODS OF BIRTH CONTROL, 1915 <236707> ; 2:4, Pamphlets, MAGNETATION METHODS OF BIRTH CONTROL, 1915 236709> ; other enclosures not found.

1. SERIES/SUBSERIES: The series number (in Roman numerals) within The Margaret Sanger Papers Microfilm Edition. For the Collected Documents Series it is always rendered as Series III. This is followed in parentheses by the subseries number and title.

2. ACCESSION NUMBER: An internal control number assigned to each document by the editors of the Margaret Sanger Papers (MSP).

3. CATEGORY HEADING: The category heading for all subgroups into which Subseries 2–5 documents have been divided (ex. "ABCL Minutes" or "Diaries"). The category heading appears beneath the series and subseries number. For Subseries 1: Correspondence this target field remains blank.

4. DATE: The date of the document is rendered as Month/Day/Year. When all or a portion of a date appears in brackets, it signifies the portion that has been provided, corrected, or questioned by the editors. When the date supplied by the editors is probable, it is enclosed in square brackets; editorial conjecture is indicated by square brackets followed by a question mark. For example, a letter dated by the author only as "The Friday before Christmas, 1939" is rendered as [12/22]/1939 on the target. A letter that is undated but contains the sentence "Last week was the second anniversary of Pearl Harbor" is rendered as [12/??/1943].

5. LOCATION: The location indicates where the document was created. The name of the city is followed by the U.S. state (abbreviated) or country. The same bracketing procedures used in the Date field are used in the Location field. For example, a letter without a stated location in the heading but in which the author mentions "waiting for a train in Grand Central Station" would be rendered as [New York, NY].

Some documents are created in transit. If a document was written aboard a ship, the name of the ship (if known) is given (ex. "SS Grover Cleveland, at sea"). If a document was written aboard a train, "On Train" is cited as the city, followed by the state or country if known. Additional information about the location may also be included in the Notes field, such as "Written between Florence and Rome."

6. FRAMES: The number of frames for each document. The number of frames does not necessarily reflect the number of pages of the document, as more than one page may be included on a single frame.

7. AUTHOR AND RECIPIENT: The names of authors and recipients. This information is recorded on the target and indexed for the Correspondence (Subseries 1), Organizations/ Conferences (Subseries 2), and Miscellany (Subseries 5) only. These fields are omitted on targets for Legal/Government (Subseries 3) when only titles (of the case or bill) are recorded. As all documents in Writings (Subseries 4) are authored by Sanger, her name has been omitted from the targets, and as in Subseries 3, only the titles are cited (and indexed).

Bracketing of author/recipient names follows the same rules as bracketing of dates and locations. For example, a short letter signed only "Bill" in which the handwriting and/or style closely resembles other letters written by Sanger's first husband, is rendered as [William Sanger]; an unsigned typed letter in which the content only suggests the identity, the name might be rendered as [William Sanger]?.

8. DOCUMENT TYPE: A document type (letters, reports, programs, etc.) has been inserted for all documents except those in Subseries 3: Legal/Government, and Subseries 4: Writings (where the category headings provide the document type).

9. TITLE: Titles of documents, if any. For Subseries 4: Writings, all of the documents have titles. For Writings which lack a discernable title, the editors have supplied appropriate titles. In certain instances titles have been regularized to provide clarity. Untitled drafts of writings have been given the same title as final versions.

Some documents in Subseries 2: Organizations/Conferences, Subseries 3: Legal/Government, and Subseries 5: Miscellany also have titles, but there are generally no titles for Subseries 1: Correspondence, though some enclosures are titled.

10. PERMISSION: Permission statement providing information about holder of the physical document. Researchers seeking to obtain permission for use or publication must contact the holder of the original document (see list of repositories and collections on pages 3–15).

11. COLLECTION: The specific collection in which the document was found.

12. NOTES: A physical description of the document. These descriptions are followed when necessary by notes identifying potential image problems. Other relevant physical properties of the original document, and/or clarification of misinformation that appears on the document may also be noted, along with additional information about signatures and margin notes, and references to related material in the edition, such as transcriptions, translations, enclosures, or additional drafts.

D. Enclosures

An effort has been made to locate all enclosures cited in the documents. Most enclosures follow immediately after the parent document and are identified at the top of the target as "ENCLOSURE FOR MSP#" (with same control number as parent document). However, when an enclosure is a document in which Sanger is an author or recipient, or a document which otherwise meets our selection criteria, it is treated as a separate document rather than as an enclosure and filed under the appropriate subseries and category and then by author or date and accession number. In such cases the Notes field of the parent document's target indicates the location of the enclosure as follows:

"For enclosure see 3:1 (in this case referring to Series 3—Collected Documents and Subseries 1—Correspondence), Margaret Sanger to Theodore Gerson, February 16, 1916 <302000>."

or

"For enclosed minutes see 2:4 (in this case referring to Series 2—Smith College Collections and Subseries 4—Writings), Pamphlets, DUTCH METHODS OF BIRTH CONTROL, 1915 <236707>.

Readers wishing to locate this document can either find it filed chronologically on the appropriate series reel or can turn to the index to quickly find the specific reel and frame citation.

Enclosures which have not been located are cited in the Notes field as "Enclosure not found." Deliberately unfilmed material, such as cash, checks, photos, paintings, books, and tickets is not referred to in the Notes field of the target.

E. Transcription and Translations

Documents that would not film clearly have been transcribed by the editors and follow the parent document. This is signalled to the reader in the Notes field of the parent document's target with the message "TRANSCRIPTION FOLLOWS." All transcriptions are verbatim except that the placement of dates and indentation of the opening line of paragraphs are standardized. When only a small portion of a document is illegible or obscured (such as a margin note written in pencil), only that portion has been transcribed and the transcribed text appears in quotation marks in the Notes field of the target.

The editors have also prepared translations of non-English language documents. The translations follow the non-English language parent document and are signalled by a target note message reading "TRANSLATION FOLLOWS." All non-English language documents have been transcribed in their entirety. However, foreign phrases in otherwise English language documents have not been translated.

F. Name and Date Usage

AUTHORITY NAMES:

The editors have selected one name to be used as the Authority Name for each individual and organization regardless of how many versions of the name appear in the documents. All documents are filed by the Authority Names rather than the name that appears on the document, and all individuals and organizations are indexed by their Authority Names.

> Example: Mrs. Richard J. Walsh, Mrs. Walsh, and P. Buck are all rendered on targets by the Authority Name of Pearl S. Buck, with appropriate bracketing for those portions of the Authority Name that do not appear in the document. All letters written by Mrs. Richard Walsh are filed under the appropriate date by the Authority Name, [Pearl S. Buck], and indexed under BUCK, Pearl S.

In cases where we could not determine the correct full name of an author or recipient, we have used the general terms [Unknown], [Illegible], or [Anonymous] on both the targets and in the index.

Individual Authority Names:

In selecting Authority Names for individuals, full names (if known) are substituted for partial and abbreviated names or nicknames (Dick Higgins = [Richard P.] Higgins) and initials (A. Stone = [Abraham] Stone).[3] For married women, the woman's own first name and maiden name, if known, are used in place of the husband's first name (Mrs. Stanley McCormick = [Katharine Dexter] McCormick).

[3]In a few cases, initials were preserved in the Authority Name if an individual chose to use initials and was well known by this form (for example, H. G. Wells).

Organization Authority Names:

Many local and regional organizations changed names over the course of Sanger's life. An effort has been made to regularize the names of these organizations by assigning them an Authority Name. For example, the names of regional organizations are generally cited with the geographic location at the front of the name, such as Tucson Planned Parenthood Center rather than Planned Parenthood Center of Tucson. In this way readers may consult the index and find, grouped together, a list of all of the various Tucson clinics and organizations. Exceptions to this are most non-U.S. family planning associations whose names have not been changed.

The names of Sanger-related organizations are rendered on targets by abbreviations. A list of the abbreviations used for these organizations can be found in Section VI.

USE OF INDIVIDUAL NAMES:

Letters written by one individual on behalf of or under the direction of another, or letters received by one on behalf of another will include the names of both individuals on the target (and are cited under both names in the index).

Example: If Florence Rose wrote a letter on behalf of Sanger, both Rose and Sanger are listed as authors even if the letter does not include Sanger's name in the closing.

Sanger received numerous letters from women seeking birth control information who often disclosed private sexual or medical histories. In the interests of protecting the privacy of these individuals, their names have been blocked out of the documents on the microfilm. In place of their actual names the word "[Client]" has been inserted on the target as the author or recipient. (These correspondents are also cited under "Client" in the index).

USE OF ORGANIZATION NAMES:

Organization names are treated differently in Subseries 1: Correspondence than in the other subseries. This edition makes a distinction between organizations Sanger founded or led, or with which she was otherwise associated, and those with which she was not. Due to the overwhelming number of letters written or received on behalf of organizations with which Sanger was involved, the editors have omitted the names of these Sanger-related organizations as authors or recipients on the targets (and in the index) in Subseries 1: Correspondence. Thus, for a letter written by Sanger as director of the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau (BCCRB) on letterhead, only Sanger's name appears as the author. If the letter does not clearly cite the specific name of the organization on whose behalf Sanger was writing in the letterhead or closing, an explanatory target note will indicate that it was "Written on behalf of the BCCRB." Only when the Sanger organization is the only author or recipient of the document will the organization name appear as the author.

For documents in Subseries 2: Organizations/Conferences, Sanger-related organizations (with subgroups of the organization such as Executive Committee or Board of Directors added when pertinent) are always cited as the first author or recipient. This is followed, where appropriate, by an individual author or recipient. For example, the target for an annual report of the Clinical Research Department of the ABCL, authored by Dorothy Bocker, would include two authors (ABCL Clinical Research Department and Dorothy Bocker). Both authors would also be cited in the index.

In all subseries, non-Sanger organizations are rendered completely as primary or secondary authors or recipients. When a document is written on behalf of a non-Sanger organization or directed to someone as an employee of such an organization, both the name of the individual and the organization is cited.

Example: A letter written by Dana S. Creel of the Rockefeller Brothers Fund to Sanger regarding grant money to support international birth control work contains two authors: Creel and the Rockefeller Brothers Fund. However, a personal letter from Dana S. Creel (even if written on business letterhead) that neither discusses business nor continues a dialogue related to the activities of his organization contains only one author: Dana S. Creel.

DATES:

The date cited on the target is the composition date of the document with the following exceptions: for organizational minutes and agendas the date of the meeting is cited; for monthly or annual reports the month(s) and/or year(s) covered are cited; for undated conference materials the date of the conference is used; and for published materials the publication date is cited.

Frequently dates or partial dates were added by the author or a third party. In these instances, the added portions of the date, if correct, are bracketed or corrected and bracketed. An explanatory note is added to the Notes field of the target, stating that the date or portion of the date was added to the document. When an incorrect date has been added to a document, the editors indicated this in the Notes field and, when possible, have supplied the correct date on the target in brackets.

Documents that have more than one date (e.g., a letter written on May 5 and May 12, 1949) or that were written over a span of time (e.g., a letter written between May 5 and May 12, 1949) are rendered with the multiple dates or date span on the target as 05/05/1949 and 05/12/1949 or 05/05/1949 thru 05/12/1949 respectively. When we have been able to ascertain that a document was written on one of two dates, we will use "or" to signify that. For example, for a letter written on a middle Friday in November 1923, the date on the target is rendered as 11/[09]/1923 or 11/[16]/1923.

III. Locating Records

Locating documents in this microfilm edition is quite easy provided the reader is armed with at least some basic information (an individual's name, a date, an organization, or in some cases a specific title or subject). There are three levels of access to the documents: the guide with reel descriptions, the index, and the microfilm itself.

A. Access through the Guide

Readers wishing to locate groups of documents around a specific issue, individual, organization, or event can narrow their search by consulting the reel descriptions included in this guide. These descriptions provide a brief glimpse of the contents of each reel by including the names of prominent organizations and people and an overview of the events and activities covered in each span or group of documents. To find documents relating to a certain period in Sanger's life, a reader would begin by looking at the reel covering correspondence for those years and those tracing her other activities for that period. These lists would then point the reader to the descriptions of the reels containing records of the organizations with which Sanger was involved during those years and those tracing her other activities for that period. The reader would then peruse the pertinent reels. The reader can also check the Organization Histories included in Section IV of this guide for the names of the primary members of the staff, boards, and committees associated with Sanger-related organizations, which offer references to other areas of the collection where information on a particular organization can be found.

B. Access through the Index

To locate specific documents by reel and frame, readers should use the Indexes to each of the five subseries, searching by name (author/recipient), date, title and/or general categories of documents. Readers should begin their search by determining the specific subseries of documents in which they are interested. For example, if a reader is interested in the relationship between Sanger and H. G. Wells, he or she would check the Correspondence (Subseries 1) index and the Miscellany index (Subseries 5) under the category "H. G. Wells Dinner." Those portions of the Index arranged by either title or category of material (Subseries 3: Legal/Government Records, Subseries 4: Writings, and Subseries 5: Miscellany) offer a degree of subject access as well.

C. Access through the Microfilm

The logical arrangement of the material in this edition into five subseries is conducive to scanning reels or sections of reels for correspondence covering a particular time period, the records of a specific organization, a particular legal case, a category of writings, or a miscellaneous topic. Scanning the microfilm provides a detailed picture of Sanger's thoughts, activities, theories, writings and organizational work on a day-to-day basis. To help them select the reels pertinent to their interest, the document information included on each target header provides readers with further detailed information about the documents. Readers might consult the list of reel descriptions (Section VIII) for an overview of the collection.

D. Search Strategies

Depending on the research query the reader brings to the edition, different strategies will be more effective. The reel descriptions in this guide not only provide an overview of the edition but an introduction to the collection by subject, providing the general reader with the ability to select a topic for further research. In general, when research centers around a name or title or when seeking one specific document, the index offers the quickest access to the edition. When the research revolves around Sanger's activities during a specific date span, access through the microfilm is the most effective.

Researchers forming a search strategy should consider logical connections among the different subseries. For example, to locate all of the records documenting the 1952 Third International Conference on Planned Parenthood in Bombay, at least four subseries should be consulted: Subseries 1: Correspondence, under the appropriate dates of the conference; Subseries 2: Organizations/Conferences, under minutes and other records both of the sponsoring organization (the International Planned Parenthood Federation) and the participating organization (the Planned Parenthood Federation of America), as well as the files on the conference itself; Subseries 4: Writings, in the subcategory of "Diaries and Journals," for Sanger's journal entries on the conference; in "Articles and Speeches," for any speeches delivered by Sanger during the conference, and finally in Subseries 5: Miscellany, under "Itineraries, Tours and Posters," for Sanger's travel plans to Bombay.

When formulating a search regarding Sanger's organizations, researchers should make use of the Organization Histories provided in Section IV of this guide. Each History provides a brief introduction to the purpose, structure, and work of the organization. They also facilitate use of the Correspondence Index by providing lists of names of officers in the organization.

E. Target References

To locate related documents filmed elsewhere in the series or the edition, readers should look at the target notations, which will provide the series and subseries number, the author or the category under which the document is filed, and the date of the document. In most cases, if the document is in the same series and subseries as the parent document, scanning the microfilm will be the easiest method of finding it.

> For example, if a reader is looking at a letter dated May 21, 1924, that has an enclosure reference to it in the Notes field as "3:1, Juliet Rublee to Margaret Sanger, April 23, 1924," he or she can simply scroll the reel back to April 23, and then look at the document (which is filed alphabetically within each date) for letters authored by Juliet Rublee.

If the enclosure or other referenced document is in another subseries (and thus likely to be on another reel), readers can either consult the reel descriptions to find the likely reel number and then scan through until the specific document is located or turn to the index for the exact reel and frame citation (the subseries reference will point readers to the correct subseries index and category headings).

When scanning for such referenced documents, readers should make sure to use the information as cited on the targets rather than the documents themselves to look for dates and names, as the documents often have missing, incorrect, or incomplete dates or may not include the Authority Name.

IV. Organization Histories

Introduction

The Organization Histories provide essential information about each of the sixteen national and international birth control organizations that Margaret Sanger established or with which she was associated from 1916 to 1962. The entry for each organization includes a brief summary of its history, goals, accomplishments, and Sanger's involvement and contributions; and an outline of the organizational structure, major committees, and departments. To assist readers in locating pertinent correspondence relating to the organizations, each entry also includes a list of board members, staff, and major committee members, as well as officers of the organization. They also include references to other subseries in which information on the organization can be found; and a note on sources, including the scope and nature of material related to the organization in of each of the three microfilm series of the Margaret Sanger Papers, along with references to other collections, material not included in the edition, and occasionally relevant secondary sources.

Organization Histories are designed to assist readers in locating pertinent organizational records and other related documents. Because the names of these Sanger-related organizations have not been cited in the targets or the indexes as authors and recipients in Subseries 1: Correspondence, these Histories will help readers identify general correspondence (non-form letters) written to or on behalf of these organizations. Thus, readers may look under the Histories for the names of individuals associated with each organization and then track that individual's correspondence by date either by scrolling through the relevant reels (identified by checking the reel descriptions) or by consulting the Subseries 1: Correspondence Index under the individual's name.

Due to incomplete source information for some of the organizations, the often short periods of service for staff members, and the large number of part-time and volunteer workers, the name lists may not include every individual associated with each organization. Furthermore, time and space constraints did not allow for a complete listing of committees, national councils, or committee and department designations for each individual. However, the major subdivisions, departments, and committees have been listed, including both employee-staffed and volunteer-staffed committees and councils. The Histories that follow appear in alphabetical order by organization title. The organizations included are:

American Birth Control League 31
Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau 34
Birth Control Council of America 39
Birth Control Federation of America 40
Birth Control International Information Centre 45
Birth Control Review/New York Women's Publishing Company 46

THE AMERICAN BIRTH CONTROL LEAGUE (1921–1939)

Margaret Sanger founded the American Birth Control League (ABCL) on November 10, 1921, at the first American Birth Control Conference in New York City. She established the ABCL to offer an ambitious program of education, legislative reform, and research that would supersede the work of Mary Ware Dennett's Voluntary Parenthood League, the successor to the National Birth Control League. Her goal was to build a truly national organization with representation in every region of the country. The staff and board of directors of the ABCL grew directly out of The Birth Control Review, the monthly journal Sanger launched in 1917. In 1923, the ABCL took over publication of The Birth Control Review from the New York Women's Publishing Company.

During Sanger's tenure as president, the ABCL focused on distributing birth control information to doctors, social workers, women's clubs, and the scientific community, as well as to thousands of individual women; fostering the development of state and local birth control leagues and clinics; and lobbying at the state and national level for birth control legislation. A large part of the ABCL's activities involved the organization of conferences and public meetings on birth control. The League operated with the support of a national council composed of physicians, scientists, and prominent New York-area society women. By 1926 the ABCL also received support from over 37,000 general members. Members paid one dollar to join and were often asked to support the ABCL's legislative initiatives by writing to their state and congressional representatives.

The first legal birth control clinic in the United States, the Clinical Research Bureau (CRB), opened in 1923 under the auspices of the ABCL. The clinic provided married women and couples with contraceptive services, including counselling and follow-up visits. Most women were fitted with pessaries or diaphragms to be used with a contraceptive jelly. The clinic kept extensive patient records to be used for research and to demonstrate the effectiveness and safety of a doctor-staffed contraceptive program. The CRB served as the medical arm of the ABCL, conducting research and testing on a variety of contraceptives and medical practices related to reproduction, and responding to queries from women, doctors, and other clinics throughout the country. The largest birth control clinic in the country, the CRB served as a model for the establishment of doctor-staffed clinics across the nation. Although Sanger maintained the clinic as a largely independent entity, the CRB reported to the board of directors of the ABCL and received part of its operating budget from ABCL resources.

Sanger served as president from 1921 until her resignation on June 12, 1928, over administrative differences with Acting President Eleanor Dwight Jones, a desire to concentrate on birth control research and clinical service at the CRB, and her increased interest in international work. After her resignation, Sanger assumed full control of the CRB, renaming it the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau (BCCRB), and severed all legal ties with the ABCL. In 1939, the ABCL merged with the BCCRB to form the Birth Control Federation of America, which in 1942 changed its name to the Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

Organizational Structure, Major Departments, and Committees:

Advisory Board/Consulting Committee: Consisted of physicians who primarily advised the Clinical Research Bureau on medical issues and represented the clinic within the medical community.

Board of Directors: Approximately fifteen members who oversaw all facets of the organization and elected an Executive Committee to supervise operations.

Clinical Research Bureau (CRB): Founded in 1923, the CRB was directed by a woman physician (Dr. Dorothy Bocker, followed by Dr. Hannah Stone) and maintained a Medical Advisory Board. When Margaret Sanger resigned the presidency of the ABCL in 1928, she asserted full and independent control of the clinic, renaming it the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau. In 1925, the Bureau operated a clinic in the predominately African American midtown neighborhood of Columbus Hill, which remained opened just three months. In 1926, the CRB also opened a Brooklyn clinic, which lasted nine months.

Conference Committees: Committees formed for each of the conferences sponsored by the ABCL. Various officers and members of the national council participated in organizing and funding the conferences.

Congressional Committee: Founded in 1926, the Congressional Committee lobbied Congress and other organizations for a federal birth control bill. State lobbying was also undertaken in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, and California.

Education Department: Supervised the Publications Department, the Book Department, and the Margaret Sanger Lecture Bureau. It launched various education programs and helped to organize conferences and mass mailings.

Executive Committee: Comprised of ABCL officers (president, vice-presidents, treasurer) and selected members of the Board of Directors, the Executive Committee was empowered to oversee daily operations of the ABCL.

Margaret Sanger Lecture Bureau: Later called simply the Lecture Bureau, this department arranged for lectures on birth control by Margaret Sanger, James F. Cooper, and other members of the ABCL staff.

Motherhood Advice Bureau (MAB)/Motherhood Department: The MAB was established to answer the thousands of letters received by Margaret Sanger requesting birth control information.

National Council: A group of prominent socialites, religious leaders, and physicians recruited by Sanger to provide respectability and advice to the ABCL. National Committee members had few formal duties but occasionally advised and assisted Sanger on policy questions and fund-raising.

Publications Department (including the Book Department): Responsible for the publication of The Birth Control Review, processing orders for ABCL publications and for Sanger's books, and dispatching press releases.

Note on sources:
The largest collection of ABCL records can be found at Harvard University's Houghton Library. Many of these documents, as well as material found in the papers of such National Council members as Leon Cole, Raymond Pearl, Adolf Meyer, and Clarence C. Little have been included in the Collected Documents Series. There are also substantial ABCL records dating from 1928 to 1937 on the Library of Congress microfilm. A smaller collection of material, including early correspondence regarding ABCL activities, is located in the Smith College Collections Series. The Birth Control Review provides a good sense of the League's activities and is available both in hardcover (DeCapo Press) and on microfilm (History of Women Collection, published by Research Publications, Reels 15–16).

THE BIRTH CONTROL CLINICAL RESEARCH BUREAU (1928–1939)

The Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau (BCCRB) began in 1923 as the Clinical Research Bureau (CRB), the first legal birth control clinic in the country. Opened in New York City by Margaret Sanger, the CRB operated under the auspices of the American Birth Control League (ABCL) and functioned primarily as a contraceptive dispensary and research laboratory. It quickly emerged as the nation's primary facility for the testing and study of contraceptive methods and devices. In June of 1928, when Sanger resigned as president of the ABCL, she assumed full control of the CRB (renaming it the BCCRB) and severed all legal ties with the ABCL. The BCCRB served as an autonomous clinic and research facility from 1928 to 1939. In 1939 it reunited with the ABCL to form the Birth Control Federation of America (BCFA), which in 1942 changed its name to Planned Parenthood Federation of America (PPFA). The BCCRB, which continued to function as the largest contraceptive clinic in the country, changed its name to the Margaret Sanger Research Bureau (MSRB) in 1940 in honor of its founder.

The BCCRB served well over ten thousand patients each year by the 1930s. It provided contraceptive instruction for married women and couples, a range of gynecological services, and training for physicians and students. The BCCRB also established a nationwide network of affiliated clinics and supervised numerous field projects in the rural South. Clinic staff worked in close association with Sanger's National Committee for Federal Legislation for Birth Control (NCFLBC) and promoted the inclusion of contraceptive instruction in public health programs throughout the country. The clinic's detailed follow-up work with patients and careful recordkeeping enabled medical researchers, contraceptive manufacturers, and associated clinics to study the effectiveness and safety of particular forms of birth control, including the diaphragm and jelly, condom, and the rhythm method.

From 1925 to 1929, the Maternity Research Council (MRC), a group of New York physicians led by Robert Latou Dickinson, attempted to take control over the Clinic. While Margaret Sanger negotiated with the MRC and made several concessions, she abandoned the proposed merger in 1929 after the MRC failed to secure a dispensary license for the Clinic.

The BCCRB sought to operate within the constraints of New York State law, which stated that doctors could prescribe contraceptives only for the prevention or cure of a disease, including tuberculosis, syphilis, and various types of psychoses. The BCCRB broadly interpreted the law to allow parents interested in spacing their children to be eligible for contraceptive information, while treating countless other patients under a catchall of medical indications, such as general debility. The Bureau was challenged on several occasions for illegally dispensing birth control devices and information, most notably in April of 1929 when police raided the clinic, seized records and equipment, and arrested Medical Director Dr. Hannah Stone, along with four other staff members. A judge later dismissed the charges against the clinic and its workers, citing insufficient evidence. The raid generated significant publicity for the clinic and helped secure long-sought support from New York's medical establishment, which emphatically condemned the police action, called for a return of all patient records, and lent credibility to the work of the clinic.

In 1933 the BCCRB also participated in a test case to challenge the federal obscenity laws. Sanger arranged for a package of pessaries to be sent from Japan to the Bureau's medical director, Dr. Hannah Stone. The package was seized by customs officials. After an extended trial (U.S. v. One Package) and appeal process, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second District ruled in favor of releasing the package in 1936, stating that physicians could circulate and prescribe contraceptives and contraceptive information in the interests of the health and general well-being of their patients.

As founder and director, Sanger managed the internal operations of the BCCRB as well as fund-raising, public relations, and the pursuit of new research and testing. She was more intimately involved with the administration of the BCCRB than with any of the other organizations she established or directed during her long career. By the early 1930s, however, she left the daily management of the Bureau largely in the hands of its medical director, Dr. Hannah Stone, while concentrating her efforts on fund-raising activities and her campaign for federal birth control legislation.

Organizational Structure, Major Departments, and Committees:

Advisory Council: Consisted of physicians and gynecologists who advised on particular medical matters and publicly defended the clinic from criticism within the medical community.

Board of Managers: Comprised of wealthy donors, most of them women, the Board of Managers guided the clinic during a period of extensive growth, encouraging field projects and establishing fund-raising strategies. The Board of Managers was replaced by a Board of Trustees in 1932, but continued to operate as an Auxiliary Committee to the NCFLBC.

Board of Trustees: Organized in December of 1931, the Board of Trustees officially replaced the Board of Managers in March of 1932. Sanger opted to create the more prestigious Board of Trustees in order to receive wider medical approval for the Bureau. The Board was primarily concerned with the public image of the clinic, fund-raising, and affiliation with medical groups.

Executive Committee: Founded in 1935 to help manage the BCCRB and the National Committee on Federal Legislation for Birth Control (NCFLBC) while Sanger was abroad. The Committee consisted of between three and five individuals who advised on all aspects of the management and affairs of the Bureau.

Education and Research Department (Public Progress Committee): Provided publications, press releases, and form letters to inform a large number of clients and supporters. The Public Progress Committee organized members to engage in letter-writing campaigns.

Harlem Branch: In an attempt to give African American New Yorkers greater access to birth control services, Sanger opened a satellite clinic in Harlem in 1930. For six years the Harlem Branch served a mostly black clientele in the upper Manhattan district. The Harlem Branch operated in conjunction with the New York Urban League, had its own advisory board, and carried a staff consisting of two physicians, a nurse, and a social worker. Class and racial tensions and severe financial problems led to the closing of the Harlem Branch in 1936.

Journal of Contraception*: Started in 1935, the Journal published articles regarding research on contraception, sterility, and other biological aspects of reproduction. The Journal changed its name to Human Fertility in 1940.

Marital Advice Bureau: Offered counseling services for engaged or married couples seeking information on contraception and sexual relations.

Motherhood Advice Bureau/Book Department: Responded to inquiries from across the country regarding birth control methods and availability and distributed pamphlets, lists of regional clinics, and other educational literature as well as Sanger's books.

Recreation Rooms and Settlement Branch: A demonstration birth control clinic located in the lower East Side of New York that operated in conjunction with the Recreation Settlement. The clinic ran periodically from 1933 to 1935.

Research Committee: Supervised research projects including laboratory testing of new contraceptive products and statistical studies of clinic patients.

Staff: A director, assistant director, medical director, treasurer, eight to sixteen women doctors, an equal number of nurses and clerical staff, and one social worker.

Note on sources:

The largest collection of BCCRB records is located on the Library of Congress microfilm of Sanger's papers. The Collected Documents Series includes organizational records and extensive correspondence drawn from the records of the Maternal Health Committee, the Robert Latou Dickinson Papers, the Raymond Pearl Papers, the Adolf Meyer Papers, the Abraham and Hannah Stone Papers, and other collections. The Smith College Collections Series contains considerable correspondence between Sanger and clinic workers, board members, and advisory council members, but a relatively small number of organizational records. There were a number of contemporary studies done on the BCCRB that provide information on the client base and clinic procedures. See for example Marie Kopp, Birth Control in Practice (1933); Regine Stix and Frank Notestein, Controlled Fertility (1940); and Carol Hadley Robinson, Seventy Birth Control Clinics (1930).

THE BIRTH CONTROL COUNCIL OF AMERICA (1937)

The Birth Control Council of America (BCCA) was formed in 1937 to coordinate the activities of the American Birth Control League (ABCL) and the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau (BCCRB), eliminate duplication of efforts, establish joint standards of affiliation of birth control clinics, and discuss new directions for the movement. The Council was established in the wake of the disbanding of the National Committee on Federal Legislation for Birth Control and the 1936 decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in the U.S. vs. One Package case, effectively removing legal obstacles limiting the ability of doctors to import, distribute, and prescribe contraceptives.

With Margaret Sanger as chairman, the BCCA held a series of meetings in 1937 focusing much of the discussion on clinic affiliation and the amalgamation of two birth control publications: The Birth Control Review and The Birth Control News. However, Council members could not agree on specific proposals or resolve disagreements regarding a joint publication. Sanger resigned as chairman in June of 1937 over the BCCA's ineffectiveness and lack of power. The Council disbanded, but several of its members reconvened in 1938 as the Joint Committee/ABCL & BCCRB to continue discussions between the two organizations and arrange and coordinate a merger.

Organization of Council:

The Council consisted of nine members who met periodically in 1937.

Council Members:

Fairchild, Henry Pratt—Vice-Chairman
Goldstein, Rabbi Sidney E.
Holden, Frederick C.
Matsner, Eric M.
Moore, Allison Pierce
Sanger, Margaret—Chairman
Stone, Abraham
Stone, Hannah Mayer
Wile, Ira Solomon

For other organizations involved with the BCCA, see:
Joint Committee—ABCL & BCCRB for records of the ensuing coordinating organization
ABCL for records related to activities leading up to the merger
BCCRB for records related to activities before and after merger

Note on sources:
Sources on the BCCA are limited. Some scattered correspondence between Council members can be found in the Collected Documents Series. The Smith College Collections Series contains an incomplete file of BCCA minutes and some relevant correspondence. The Library of Congress microfilm contains a few documents related to the merger in 1939 but nothing specifically related to the BCCA.

THE BIRTH CONTROL FEDERATION OF AMERICA (1939–1942)

The Birth Control Federation of America (BCFA) was established on January 19, 1939, through a merger of the American Birth Control League (ABCL) and the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau (BCCRB).[5] The reorganization into the BCFA was negotiated in meetings of a joint committee of representatives from both organizations. The committee concluded that only through united action and cooperative use of resources, rather than competition and duplication of services and publicity, would they achieve efficiency in administration and broader acceptance of the birth control movement. At a special membership meeting held on January 29, 1942, the BCFA changed its name to the Planned Parenthood Federation of America (PPFA).

Through the work of its various departments, the BCFA supported birth control activities throughout the United States. It distributed contraceptive information to clinics, conducted laboratory and clinical research in contraceptive methods (primarily through the BCCRB), supported state committees and leagues, and promoted the inclusion of courses on contraceptive techniques in medical school curricula. In addition, the BCFA lobbied to have contraceptive services included in existing public health programs and lobbied for legislation favorable to the increased availability of contraceptives. The Federation also managed several rural health projects, including a Negro Project in the South, carried out with the support of many prominent black leaders.

[5]The BCCRB operated independently even after the merger, although it conducted joint projects with the clinic service and medical department of the BCFA.

The BCFA marked the first time in the birth control movement that men held nearly all of the major leadership positions. Relegated to a limited role as honorary chairman of the BCFA, Margaret Sanger was not closely involved in most policy decisions or in the daily activities of this organization. However, she did serve as an advisor, chief fund-raiser and frequent gadfly, opposing the leadership of the Federation on many occasions.

Organizational Structure, Major Departments, and Committees:

Affiliates (Members): State member organizations and local groups whose purposes and activities were consistent with the Federation. Members were accepted or rejected by the Federation's Board of Directors. Each member affiliate supplied a representative who served on the Board of Directors. The Federation supplied affiliates with educational material, program proposals, and advisory services and arranged for field worker visits.

Board of Directors: State representatives and directors-at-large. The Board elected the Executive Committee, developed national policies, and supervised all facets of the organization.

Clinic Service Department: In association with the Medical Department assisted clinics in improving medical standards, certified clinics, and issued a directory of clinics and clinical services in the United States and Canada; oversaw the Mother's Advice Department which answered approximately 1,000 "client letters" annually.

Executive Committee: The president, national director, honorary chairman, chairman of the board, chairmen of operating committees, and selected members of the Board of Directors. The Committee was responsible for the daily operation of the Federation.

Extension Department: In addition to managing rural health projects that were started in 1938 by the BCCRB primarily for the purpose of distributing a new foam powder contraceptive, the Extension Department also administered the Negro Project and a project to distribute birth control information to migrant families in the West.

Medical Department: Assisted clinics in meeting medical standards and helped secure medical supplies for rural health projects; distributed medical literature and films for its teaching programs; conducted laboratory and clinical research.

National Advisory Council: Group of prominent citizens organized to advise the Federation and improve the public perception of birth control.

National Committee on Planned Parenthood (Also Citizens Committee on Planned Parenthood): Group of BCFA members from across the nation organized to conduct a national fund-raising campaign. Its members included more than 1,100 leaders in religion, medicine, education, literature, and public affairs.

National Medical Council on Birth Control: An advisory group consisting of medical doctors from around the country.

Negro Project: A project of the Extension Department in cooperation with the Medical, Public Information, and Regional Organization Departments. The Negro Project was supervised by a special committee that included Margaret Sanger, Mary Lasker, and Clarence Gamble. It was guided by a national Negro Advisory Council made up of representatives of twenty-five major black organizations and universities and included many prominent black leaders. With the help of local community organizations the Negro Project assembled clinical data to influence the adoption of clinics and contraceptive techniques primarily in the black communities of the South. The Negro Project managed two demonstration projects in Nashville, Tennessee, and Berkeley County, South Carolina.

Public Information Department: Mounted exhibits; issued press releases; distributed films, press and magazine articles, and various educational literature; acted as clearinghouse of information on contraceptive research; continued publication of The Birth Control Review (previously published by ABCL and discontinued by the BCFA in 1939) and the monthly publication of The Journal of Contraception (previously published by the BCCRB from 1935 through March of 1939), which was renamed Human Fertility in 1940; and maintained a Speaker's Bureau.

Public Progress Committee: A committee that organized letter-writing campaigns in response to actions by public health officials and politicians as well as publications and coverage of birth control in the press.

Regional Organization Department: Involved primarily in educational activities throughout the United States. It launched a general campaign to extend the practice of birth control by expanding local committees and clinics and organizing state leagues.

Staff: A national director, assistants to the director, office manager, comptroller, and secretaries. The national director was responsible for developing and administrating the program and for much of the fund-raising. Officers included a president, vice-presidents, a secretary, and a treasurer.

THE BIRTH CONTROL INTERNATIONAL INFORMATION CENTRE (1930–1938)

A birth control information center was established in London in 1928 under the direction of Edith How-Martyn. In 1930, following the Seventh International Conference on Birth Control in Zurich, the center was reorganized as the Birth Control International Information Centre (BCIIC), with Margaret Sanger as president and Edith How-Martyn as director. The BCIIC merged with the National Birth Control Association of England (name later changed to the Family Planning Association of England) in 1938, which continued much of the international agenda of the Centre until the formation of the International Committee on Planned Parenthood in 1948.

The stated purpose of the BCIIC was to "spread the knowledge of birth control all over the world." In effect, the Centre acted as a clearinghouse for birth control information, responding to inquiries regarding the location of clinics, availability and effectiveness of particular contraceptives, methods, and legal restrictions. The Centre published numerous pamphlets, transcriptions of speeches, newsletters, bulletins, and other information about contraception, new research, and clinic updates. The BCIIC coordinated international birth control activities (the organization of clinics and conferences) with the help of correspondents in over thirty countries. The Centre staff also arranged for visitors to tour clinics in London and New York and hosted weekly meetings in London with guest speakers from various countries.

The BCIIC sponsored several tours for birth control, including Sanger's tour of Scandinavia and the Soviet Union in 1934, Edith How-Martyn's tour of India in 1934, and Sanger and How-Martyn's World Tour for Birth Control in 1935–1936, during which they spoke to numerous groups and organized birth control organizations in India, Burma, Malay, China, the Philippines, Japan, Hawaii, Canada, and the West Coast of the United States. A record of their tour was published in 1937 under the title Round the World for Birth Control.

Sanger used the BCIIC to help shape an international identity as the leader of the birth control movement and create a network of doctors, social workers, and clinics that would follow her basic program for medically supervised contraceptive dissemination and careful follow-up work. However, she acted largely as a consultant to the Centre, leaving daily operations of the BCIIC in the hands of Edith How-Martyn. In 1937 Sanger decided she would not be able to effectively run the organization from the United States and resigned as president. She was replaced by Lord Thomas Horder. How-Martyn also left the BCIIC before its absorption into the National Birth Control Association and retired to Australia.

Organizational Structure:

The BCIIC consisted of a president, director, treasurer, secretary, and advisory council. The Centre also retained correspondents in over thirty countries. A Special Efforts group was established in the early 1930s to undertake fund-raising campaigns.

BCIIC Council, Staff, and Officers:

Note on sources:
There is no extensive collection of BCIIC records. Newsletters, a good deal of correspondence (most of it between Sanger and How-Martyn), and other information on the Centre can be found in the Collected Documents Series. A copy of the Sanger/How-Martyn pamphlet, Round the World for Birth Control, as well as press releases, a statement of policy, some pertinent correspondence, and additional newsletters are contained in the Smith College Collections Series. The Library of Congress microfilm contains information on international work from 1930 to 1938 in the foreign files on reels 11–20. For additional information on the relationship between the National Birth Control Association of England (Family Planning Association of England) and the BCIIC, see the Records of the British Family Planning Association at the Wellcome Institute on the History of Medicine. In addition, the Margaret Sanger Papers in the Sophia Smith Collection at Smith College includes foreign files related to the BCIIC's work, and publications distributed by the BCIIC that were not filmed in this edition. The Birth Control Review also frequently published updates on international activities sponsored by the BCIIC and summaries of Sanger's world travels.

THE BIRTH CONTROL REVIEW
NEW YORK WOMEN'S PUBLISHING COMPANY (1917–1929)

Margaret Sanger published the first issue of The Birth Control Review* (BCR), "Dedicated to the Principle of Intelligent and Voluntary Motherhood," in New York City in February 1917. Sanger published the Review through its first year on revenues from newsstand sales, subscriptions, and donations from wealthy benefactors. In February of 1918, Sanger organized and incorporated the New York Women's Publishing Company (NYWPC) for the express purpose of financing the Review, as well as to promote the cause of birth control. Apart from financing and overseeing the publication of the Review, the NYWPC published a pamphlet, Sayings of Others on Birth Control, and reprints of articles in the BCR. The NYWPC was primarily the brain-child of Juliet Rublee, Sanger's close friend and benefactor, who provided the initial seed money and brought in several friends to purchase shares of the company. A thousand shares of stock were issued at ten dollars per share, and a board of directors was formed. The NYWPC assumed publication of the BCR with the May 1918 issue. The BCR continued to be published independently by the NYWPC until May of 1923 when the stockholders dissolved the company so that the American Birth Control League (ABCL) could absorb the Review as its major propaganda tool and "official organ."

The BCR chronicled the activities of the birth control movement and served as the chief source of information for supporters of birth control. Vigorous street sales and circulation campaigns made the Review available in nearly every state and boosted circulation to about 10,000 copies per issue by 1922. The success of the street sales was largely due to the efforts of street hawkers, most notably Kitty Marion, a British suffragist, who sold the Review in downtown New York City for thirteen years. She became a well-known street figure, faced perpetual jeers and defiance, and was arrested several times for violating the obscenity laws, including a 1918 arrest for which she served thirty days in prison.

Sanger had first launched the Review with the significant assistance of Frederick Blossom, a young Socialist worker from Cleveland, who served as the managing editor of the first several issues. Their brief association ended in the summer of 1917 when Sanger accused Blossom of siphoning off Review revenues for which he could not account. Sanger pressed charges, and the affair touched off a debate within the Socialist Party, with many members accusing Sanger of betraying a fellow member. She eventually dropped the charges, though she remained bitterly convinced of Blossom's guilt.

As editor, Sanger used the Review as her own podium, publishing many of her own speeches throughout the late 1910s and 1920s, as well as articles on a wide array of topics from the need for birth control clinics to profiles of other birth control pioneers. All the while she updated her growing audience on the events of the movement and her own activities and travels organizing for birth control. She also induced an assortment of noteworthy figures, many of them friends, including Havelock Ellis, Crystal Eastman, Eugene Debs, Charles Drysdale, and Marie Stopes, among others, to contribute articles. Most issues contained artwork, political cartoons, poetry, book reviews, and a lively letters section that often included opposing views and sometimes "mothers letters," excerpts from the letters of women seeking birth control advice.

Margaret Sanger served as editor of the BCR until January 31, 1929 (seven months after her resignation as president of the ABCL), when she resigned as editor of the Review and director of the ABCL simultaneously. The ABCL continued to publish the BCR in its original format until July of 1933, after which it produced a shorter monthly bulletin under the same name. The second incarnation of the Review ceased publication in January of 1940.

Organizational Structure:

Circulation Staff: Consisted of a circulation manager and several street sellers. After 1923, the circulation of the Review was administered by the Subscription Department, part of the Publication Department of the ABCL. Other ABCL departments, including the Motherhood Advice Bureau and the Education Department, assisted with matters related to the Review.

Editorial Staff: Editor, managing editor, literary and art editors, and later associate editors. A secretary/treasurer served from 1917 to 1918.

New York Women's Publishing Company (NYWPC): President, treasurer, secretary, and board of directors who oversaw the publication of the BCR from 1918 to 1923.

THE BROWNSVILLE CLINIC and COMMITTEE OF 100 (1916–1918)

Margaret Sanger opened the first birth control clinic in the United States on October 16, 1916, in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, New York. Sanger, her sister Ethel Byrne, who was a registered nurse, and Fania Mindell, an interpreter from Chicago, rented a small storefront space in Brownsville and canvassed the area with flyers written in English, Yiddish, and Italian advertising the services of a birth control clinic. Sanger modelled the Brownsville Clinic after the birth control clinics she had observed in Holland in 1915. For ten cents each woman received Sanger's pamphlet What Every Girl Should Know, a short lecture on the female reproductive system, and instructions on the use of various contraceptives. The Clinic served more than 100 women on the first day and some 400 until October 26 when an undercover policewoman and vice squad officers placed Sanger, Byrne, and Mindell under arrest. After being arraigned, Sanger spent the night in jail and was released the next morning. She reopened the Clinic on November 14, only to be arrested a second time and charged with maintaining a public nuisance. Sanger opened the Clinic once again on November 16, but police forced the landlord to evict Sanger and her staff, and the Clinic closed its doors a final time.

Sanger, Byrne, and Mindell went to trial in January of 1917. Byrne, tried first, was convicted and sentenced to thirty days in Blackwell's Island prison and immediately went on a hunger strike. After 185 hours without food or water, she was forcibly fed. Before Byrne's condition proved fatal, Sanger and supporters prompted New York's Governor Whitman to issue a pardon. Sanger's own trial began on January 29, and she too was convicted. However, the court offered her a suspended sentence if she promised not to repeat the offense. She refused and was offered a choice of a fine or jail sentence. She chose the latter and spent thirty days in the Queens County Penitentiary without incident. Sanger's coworker Fania Mindell was then tried, convicted, and fined fifty dollars for disturbing the peace.

Sanger appealed her conviction, and her case journeyed through the courts for a year. In January of 1918, the New York Court of Appeals sustained her conviction. However, Judge Frederick Crane's decision included a more liberal interpretation of New York State's "Little Comstock" law, enabling physicians for the first time to legally prescribe contraception for general health reasons rather than exclusively for venereal disease. In effect the ruling afforded women in New York at least some access to contraception.

The Committee of 100 was organized in January of 1917 by Gertrude Pinchot and other prominent women members of the National Birth Control League to protest the Brownsville Clinic arrests. It also raised a significant sum of money to aid with legal costs and helped to arrange the meeting between Sanger and Governor Whitman that led to the early release of Ethel Byrne from prison. The Committee, which included Mary Ware Dennett, Rose Pastor Stokes, Crystal Eastman, and Juliet Rublee, held a successful protest rally which Sanger addressed at Carnegie Hall on January 28, 1917, the night before her trial began. The Committee also published a booklet titled The Birth Control Movement, offering a succinct history of the movement, highlights of Sanger's pioneering work, and a discussion of the positive effects of family limitation. The Committee of 100 disbanded shortly after the Brownsville Clinic trials were over, but its members continued to support Sanger and the birth control movement by funding her monthly journal, The Birth Control Review, founded in 1917, and by lending their support to the First American Birth Control Conference in 1921, which led to the establishment of the American Birth Control League.

Organizational Structure:

Brownsville Clinic Staff: Sanger directed the Brownsville Clinic and served as a nurse along with her sister, Ethel Byrne. Fania Mindell assisted with administrative work and acted as a translator. Elizabeth Stuyvesant assisted with administrative tasks.

Committee of 100: Officers consisted of a chairman, two vice-chairmen, and a treasurer.

Officers of the Committee:

Cothren, Marion B.—Treasurer
Graves, Mrs. William Leon—Vice-Chairman
Pinchot, Gertrude Minturn—Chairman
Williams, Mrs. John H.—Vice-Chairman

For a complete list of Committee of 100 members, see the pamphlet The Birth Control Movement, under the Brownsville Clinic/Committee of 100 in the Collected Documents Series.

Note on sources:
Documentation on the operation of the Brownsville Clinic is scarce. Most of the extant records of the Clinic and the Committee of 100 are contained in the Collected Documents Series and on the Library of Congress microfilm, including legal records and correspondence about the trial, several letters written by Sanger from prison, and other material. The Collected Documents Series also includes minutes and resolutions of the Committee of 100. The Smith College Collections Series contains only a copy of the advertising flyer for the Clinic and several letters related to Sanger's trial and imprisonment, including two letters written from prison. The closing of the Clinic and related trials were well covered in the press, including in the New York Times, New York Herald Tribune, and Brooklyn Eagle. The New York Call and The Birth Control Review also contain articles and editorials on the trials and prison sentences.

THE COMMITTEE ON MATERNAL HEALTH/ MATERNITY RESEARCH COUNCIL (1923–1929)

The Committee on Maternal Health (CMH) was formed in March of 1923 on the initiative of Gertrude Minturn Pinchot and under the direction of Robert Latou Dickinson. Sponsored by the New York Obstetrical Society and endorsed by the New York Academy of Medicine and the American Gynecological Society, the CMH was created to undertake contraceptive and reproductive research and to serve as an information center on medical aspects of human fertility. Initially comprised of about fifty physician members, the Committee, housed at the New York Academy of Medicine, conducted trial studies, gathered clinical data from hospitals and private physicians, and disseminated its findings. However, the Committee's insistence on strict medical requirements for participation in research studies and the inability of physicians to legally import contraceptives severely limited its research efforts. Although Dickinson, the Committee's secretary and chief administrator, disapproved of lay-operated clinics, his failure to obtain sufficient patient records or diaphragms needed for reliable studies of contraception forced him to turn to the Clinical Research Bureau (CRB) of Margaret Sanger's American Birth Control League, which was, at the time, the only available source of clinical data on contraception.

In 1924 the Clinical Research Bureau had received a $10,000 grant from the Rockefeller-funded Bureau of Social Hygiene on the condition that Sanger submit the Bureau's clinical data to the CMH for medical research. The CMH had initially refused to cooperate with the CRB because of the Bureau's liberal interpretation of the legal grounds for dispensing contraception, its female medical staff, and its close association with the birth control propaganda of the American Birth Control League. Sanger, who was anxious to secure outside medical approval for the work of the Bureau, addressed these continuing criticisms by asking the CMH to make recommendations for improving the Bureau. Following the CMH suggestions and Dickinson's reports, Sanger created a Medical Advisory Board, moved the Bureau from the building that housed the American Birth Control League, and removed birth control propaganda from the Bureau's offices. Dickinson, lacking reliable clinic data and impressed by the extensive record keeping of the Bureau's medical director, Dr. Hannah Stone, eventually relented.

By 1925 Dickinson and Sanger agreed that the Bureau would be best served under the aegis of the medical profession and formed the Maternity Research Council (MRC) in December of that year to oversee the operations of the Bureau. Made up of members of the CMH, and the Bureau's Medical Advisory Board, the MRC aimed eventually to provide medically supervised clinical facilities and investigate and evaluate contraceptive methods. At Sanger's behest, it was also charged with securing a dispensary license for the CRB from the New York State Board of Charities, which the Bureau had been unable to obtain by itself.

However, the New York State Board of Charities refused to grant the Bureau a license despite the MRC's lobbying efforts in 1926 and 1927. The state board ruled that it was inadvisable to sanction additional clinics for specialties as opposed to those of general medical care but did not elaborate on its decision. Both Dickinson and Sanger accused the Board of Charities of succumbing to pressure from the Catholic Church. Negotiations dragged on still further as MRC members remained reluctant to support the Bureau's broad interpretation of the law regarding the right of physicians to dispense contraceptives, while Sanger would not agree to cede her authority to the MRC without a dispensary license in place.

When Sanger resigned as president of the American Birth Control League in 1928, taking the CRB with her, Dickinson continued to pursue an association with the newly renamed Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau (BCCRB). The two organizations drew closer following the April 1929 police raid on the BCCRB during which patient records were confiscated. Dickinson rallied the medical community to publicly condemn the raid, prompting Sanger to momentarily agree to some of Dickinson's proposals regarding increased medical supervision of the Bureau. But, as negotiations continued through 1929, Sanger became more defensive and refused to turn complete authority over the Bureau to the MRC, although she continued to seek a degree of medical supervision. As the MRC failed to secure either a dispensary license or continued funding for the Bureau, Sanger's lingering interest in a full takeover faded. In 1930 Robert Dickinson finally joined the Bureau's Medical Advisory Board, and the MRC ceased its activities. In 1930 the CMH changed its name to the National Committee on Maternal Health and refocused its efforts on dissemination of information only. The Committee closed its offices in 1955 as its work was taken up by the Population Council.

Organizational Structure and Committees:

COMMITTEE ON MATERNAL HEALTH

Committee on Clinical Service: Oversaw all matters related to contraceptive clinics, including the availability of supplies and investigation of new products.

Committee on Medical Indications: Studied and assessed the principles underlying the use of contraception and sterilization for therapeutic or preventive reasons.

Community Relations Committee: Provided for affiliation with other groups through two subcommittees: the Nursing Group and the Committee on Community Relations.

Executive Committee: Comprised of between nine and thirteen members, most of them physicians, the Committee was responsible for carrying out medical studies and appointing officers. A board of directors was not established until 1932.

Finance Committee: Fund-raising committee that included a lay group of thirty to forty members who met once or twice a year.

General Medical Group: Consisted of the complete medical membership of the CMH. Executive members were chosen from this group at meetings that were held once every two or three years. The Group was kept informed through publications and communications from the secretary.

General Membership: Subcommittees and associated groups included approximately 100 members, most of whom were physicians representing departments of medicine and universities throughout the country.

General Studies: Consisted of projects not assigned to special subcommittees, under the direction of the general and executive secretaries. Some of the work included research on birth control, sexual activities, and sterilization.

Publication Committee: Approximately three members who solicited, edited, and published Committee manuscripts primarily for the Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Staff: Consisted of five full-time workers, including the general secretary, an executive secretary, an office secretary, and two special workers assigned to supervise research projects.

Sub-Committee on Laboratory Research Projects: Organized special research projects in cooperation with other organizations that directly applied to the study of human fertility.

MATERNITY RESEARCH COUNCIL

Directors: Consisted of eleven directors chosen from among members of the Maternal Health Committee, the New York Academy of Medicine's Public Health Committee, and the Clinical Research Bureau's Advisory Board. They met occasionally to discuss plans for the takeover of the CRB but had few other duties.

Executive Committee: Comprised of some of the directors, the Committee was designed to be responsible for the operations of the Clinic until such time as a dispensary license was granted.

THE INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE ON PLANNED PARENTHOOD (1948–1952)

The International Committee on Planned Parenthood (ICPP) was a provisional organization formed after the 1948 International Congress on Population and World Resources held in Cheltenham, England. The ICPP's objective was to collect and disseminate information on human fertility, birth control, sex education, and population problems, along with organizing programs, conferences, and other activities related to birth control education. Initial funding for the ICPP came from a grant from the Brush Foundation of Cleveland. The Committee's headquarters were set up in London under the auspices of the Family Planning Association of England and maintained by the five member organizations: the Family Planning Association of England, the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, the Margaret Sanger Research Bureau, the Nederlandse Vereniging Voor Sexuale Hervorming (the Netherlands), and the Riksfürbundet for Sexuell Upplysning (Sweden). The Committee consisted of two representatives from each of the European members and three representatives from the two American members and met annually in London from 1949 to 1951.

The ICPP established contacts with family planning organizations in over twenty countries throughout the world, providing clinics and doctors with contraceptive information and supplies, films, and sometimes field workers. It also responded to queries from individuals and served as a directory of clinic services. The Committee helped facilitate testing of contraceptive devices, primarily the foam powder/jelly and diaphragm method, in Madras and Bombay, India, and in the British West Indies. Representatives of ICPP toured several countries in Asia and the Americas, reporting on conditions and needs. After 1950, the ICPP concentrated its efforts on organizing family planning centers in India and sponsoring a third world conference. By a resolution passed at the Third International Conference on Planned Parenthood in Bombay, India, in November 1952, the ICPP was replaced by the International Planned Parenthood Federation (IPPF), with the five member organizations of the ICPP joined by family planning associations from India, Hong Kong, Singapore, and West Germany. In January of 1952, the ICPP began publication of a bulletin, Around the World News of Population and Birth Control, which after November became the chief publication of the IPPF.

Margaret Sanger had helped to organize the 1948 International Congress on Population Problems and World Resources in Cheltenham, at which time she proposed the formation of an international committee. She secured initial funding for the ICPP from the Brush Foundation and raised a large percentage of the ICPP's operating budget, along with funds to organize the 1952 Third International Conference on Planned Parenthood. She served as the sole Committee representative from the Margaret Sanger Research Bureau and was given the title of founder of the ICPP.

Organizational Structure:

The ICPP consisted of five member organizations with nine representatives, two from each European member and three representatives from the two American members. The Committee included a president and honorary secretary, a secretary, a treasurer, and an editor of the bulletin. The secretary carried out the daily work of the Committee with assistance from the Family Planning Association of England and the Margaret Sanger Research Bureau. The Committee's representatives met in London once a year from 1949 to 1951 and retained full control over the organization's policy and procedures. Many of the proposals and projects of the organization were discussed and resolved through correspondence. The five member organizations also assisted with fund-raising, research, and communications with clinics, doctors, and birth control organizers around the world.

World Information Bureau: A proposed Bureau in New York that was to assist the London office of the ICPP. A board was formed to establish the Bureau, but the idea was abandoned sometime in 1951.

ICPP Member Representatives and Staff Members:

Boas, Conrad Van Emde—Representative, Nederlandse Vereniging Voor Sexuale Hervorming
Brush, Dorothy Hamilton—Editor, Around the World News of Population and Birth Control
Cohen, Helen Donington—Secretary
Houghton, Vera—Secretary
Lorimer, Frank—Representative, Planned Parenthood Federation of America
Nielsen, Nils—Representative, Riksfürbundet For Sexuell Upplysning
Ottesen-Jensen, Elise—Representative, Riksfürbundet For Sexuell Upplysning
Pyke, Margaret A.—Representative, Family Planning Association of Great Britain
Sanger, Margaret—Founder, Representative, Margaret Sanger Research Bureau
Stone, Abraham—Representative, Planned Parenthood Federation of America
Storm, Wim F.—Representative, Nederlandse Vereniging Voor Sexuale Hervorming
Vogt, William—Representative, Planned Parenthood Federation of America
Wright, Helena Lowenfeld—Honorary Treasurer; Representative, Family Planning Association of Great Britain

Note on sources:
The records of the ICPP are included among the records of the IPPF located at the Population Centre at the University of Cardiff. The Collected Documents Series includes substantial material drawn from these records and others on the conferences, correspondence with Committee members, and reports. The Smith College Collections Series includes correspondence related to the ICPP and between members of the Committee, along with minutes and reports, a draft of the first issue of Around the World News of Population and Birth Control, and several organizational memos. The Sophia Smith Collection holds a complete set of Around the World News of Population and Birth Control. Very few records related to the ICPP are located on the Library of Congress microfilm, although it contains information on the 1952 Third International Conference and some relevant correspondence.

THE INTERNATIONAL PLANNED PARENTHOOD FEDERATION (1952–1962)

The International Planned Parenthood Federation (IPPF) was formally founded on November 29, 1952, by a resolution of the Third International Conference on Planned Parenthood in Bombay, India. The IPPF was formed out of the provisional International Committee on Planned Parenthood (ICPP) as a permanent organization dedicated to the advancement and acceptance of family planning around the world. The original four member nations of the ICPP, the United States, Great Britain, Sweden, and the Netherlands, were joined by national birth control organizations from West Germany, India, Hong Kong, and Singapore. Japan, which had not yet created a national federation of birth control organizations, was made an associate member. The IPPF incorporated new member nations each year and formed a regional structure in 1953. By 1961, the IPPF consisted of thirty-two members divided into four regions.

The IPPF continued to pursue the aims and objectives of the ICPP, including the collection and dissemination of information on birth control and human reproduction, population problems, and sex education, as well as furthering research, training, and organizational activities in these fields. But the IPPF dedicated more of its resources to the creation of new family planning associations and building a federation of existing organizations. The IPPF also gave greater priority to the development of an inexpensive and easily accessible contraceptive and assisted with research and testing of foam powder spermicides and the anovulant pill, among other methods. It organized and sponsored three major international conferences in 1953, 1955, and 1959, and many smaller regional conferences and seminars around the world. The Federation also published a monthly bulletin, Around the World News of Population and Birth Control. The operating budget for the IPPF came primarily from member dues, while donors and foundations, particularly in the United States, provided funding for the conferences and various special projects.

Margaret Sanger, who had helped to form the ICPP in 1948, was the principal force behind the decision to create a permanent federation at the Bombay conference in 1952. First appointed honorary copresident in 1952 with Lady Dhanvanthi Rama Rau of India, Sanger was elected president in 1953 at the Fourth International Conference on Planned Parenthood in Stockholm, Sweden (Lady Dhanvanthi Rama Rau was voted chairman). When Sanger resigned as president in 1959 at the Sixth International Conference on Planned Parenthood in New Delhi, India, she was given the titles of founder and president emeritus. Beginning in 1952, Sanger also led the Western Hemisphere Region of the IPPF, serving as its president until 1955, as a member of its executive committee until the late 1950s, and a member of the council until the early 1960s.

Sanger assumed the major leadership role in the IPPF at a time when declining health greatly limited her activities. During her tenure as president a core group of IPPF officers and governing body members, including Elise Ottesen-Jensen (Sweden), Dhanvanthi Rama Rau (India), C. P. Blacker (England), and Vera Houghton (England) became the key decision makers, though they communicated regularly with Sanger about IPPF policy and actions. Sanger meanwhile used her energies to pursue several key goals. She sought to focus the Federation's limited resources on expanding birth control efforts in India and Japan—two countries whose governments supported birth control measures—and to utilize the conference forum she had developed for the 1927 World Population Congress in Geneva as the chief means of unifying the autonomous family planning members and attracting and educating new member organizations. She also raised substantial funds for the international conferences and for the Western Hemisphere Region of the IPPF. Sanger's goal was to have government public health and welfare departments provide sustained, affordable, and effective birth control services. The IPPF continues to pursue the crux of her agenda today.

Organizational Structure, Members, Officers, Boards, Councils and Committees:

Member Organizations: By 1962, thirty-two organizations were federated as the IPPF. The Federation also included numerous associate members and affiliated organizations.

Member Organizations by region (including first year of membership):

Indian Ocean
Family Planning Association of India (1953)
Family Planning Association, Ceylon (1954)
Family Planning Association of Pakistan (1955)
Family Planning Association of Nepal (1960)
Family Planning Association of Burma (1961)

Far East & Australasia
Family Planning Association of Australia (1953)
Family Planning Association of Hong Kong (1953)
Family Planning Association, Singapore (1953)
Family Planning Federation of Japan (1954)

Norsk Foreningen for Familiepl-anlaegning (1955)
Väestöliitto, Finland (1959)
Mouvement Francais pour le Planning Familial (1959)
Family Welfare Association of Maritius (1959)
Towarzystwo Swiadomego Macierzynstwa, Poland (1959)
Service de la Sante Publique (1959)

Around the World News of Population and Birth Control: Monthly bulletin published by the IPPF, translated into several languages, and distributed throughout the world. Edited until the late 1950s by Dorothy Brush, the bulletin served as the Federation's primary means of disseminating information and was envisioned by Sanger as "the glue" that would bind together the international movement. The bulletin covered the activities of the Federation and included news updates on regions and specific countries, occasional messages from the president, and short articles on relevant topics. The Brush Foundation of Cleveland, Ohio, underwrote the operating expenses of the bulletin.

Constitutional Committee: Composed of five Governing Body members, the Committee considered amendments to the IPPF constitution, evaluated constitutional discrepancies, and oversaw procedure for nominations.

Council: The Council consisted of one to three representatives from each member organization, co-opted members (appointed by the Governing Body and not necessarily affiliated with a regional or national organization), and regional representatives (one or two from each region), who met at the international conferences roughly every two years. Council members served on the Governing Body.

Editorial Committee: Made up of six members of the Governing Body responsible for editorial decisions affecting the bulletin Around the World News of Population and Birth Control.

Executive Committee: Composed of members appointed by the Governing Body from among its members and including the president, chairman, vice-chairman, secretary and treasurers of the Governing Body, a representative from each full member association with more than one delegate on the Council, and a representative from each region. The Executive Committee proposed policy measures, administered fund-raising efforts, allocated funds, and evaluated the aims and objectives of the organization.

Field Committee: Assisted with and reported on field work projects that were instigated and authorized by regions. The Committee also oversaw volunteers who worked in accordance with IPPF policies and worked closely with Clarence Gamble who privately toured Asia and Africa in support of new birth control organizations and to conduct research on new contraceptives.

Finance Committee/Working Finance Committee: The Finance Committee consisted of two treasurers and one representative from each of the four regions and made recommendations to the Governing Body related to the allocation of funds. It also appointed ad hoc fund-raising committees.

Governing Body: The Governing Body was composed of Council members and officers and conducted the main business of the organization, including the election of officers, allocation of funds, election of member organizations, establishment of new regions, determination of time and place for conferences, and the formulation and amendment of rules. Though it met every two years, usually at international conferences, much of the work and communication of the body was accomplished through correspondence.

Headquarters: The London headquarters carried out the daily activities of the organization, including tour planning, training sessions for doctors, conference organization, and scheduling. It acted as a central advice bureau for member organizations, doctors, clinics, and many individuals from around the world. Form letters, organizational memos, and most publications originated from headquarters. The executive secretary ran the London office.

Medical Committee/Medical Sub-Committee: Composed of medical representatives from member countries and several officers of the Federation, the Medical Committee collected and distributed information regarding relevant medical and research findings of member organizations, maintained a bibliography of books and articles on family planning, advised members and individual doctors, issued a bulletin, supplied information about current research projects, set standards for clinics, and established policy regarding medical research.

Nomination Committee: Composed of two members from each region entrusted to nominate officers and Governing Body members not on the Council.

Officers: Consisted of a president, chairman, vice-chairman, vice-presidents (two per region), treasurers, an executive secretary, and an editor of the bulletin.

Regional Organizations: Regional organizations were established by member organizations in specific geographical locations as defined by the Governing Body. Each regional organization determined its own structure, elected its own officers, and formulated its own committees. Regional organizations instigated and oversaw projects and raised funds for their own regions.

Regional Representatives: Consisted of one or two representatives from each of the four world regions: the Indian Ocean; Americas/Western Hemisphere; Europe, Near East, and Africa; and the Western Pacific/Far East and Australasia regions. Regional representatives were members of the Council, Governing Body, and Executive Committee.

Sub-Committee on Tests for Contraceptive Products/Evaluation Sub-Committee: Consisted of Medical Committee members who established international standards for the testing of contraceptive products and reported on test results from projects around the world.

U.S. Committee: A committee formed by Sanger in 1956 to raise $175,000 for a two-year development program to fund specific IPPF-sponsored projects. The Committee sought contributions primarily from large foundations and served as a conduit between the Brush and Watumull foundations and the IPPF. The U.S. Committee consisted of a board of trustees composed of Sanger as president, an assistant to the president, and the U.S. treasurer of the IPPF, along with up to two representatives from the Brush and Watumull Foundations. Officers for the Committee included a president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer. The U.S. Committee helped with the preliminary organization of and fund-raising for the proposed Sixth International Conference on Planned Parenthood that was scheduled to be held in Washington, D.C., in 1957 or 1958. The U.S. Committee disbanded in 1958, shortly after plans for the Washington conference were shelved (the conference was rescheduled for New Delhi in 1959). Sanger also established an informal advisory group in 1953 sometimes referred to as the U.S. Committee or U.S. Advisory Group.

Western Hemisphere Region (WHR): Initially called the Americas Region, the WHR was formed in 1953 and consisted of one member organization, the Planned Parenthood Federation of America (PPFA). The WHR was initially housed at the PPFA offices in New York City but later moved to the Margaret Sanger Research Bureau. The WHR consisted of a president, two vice-presidents, a secretary, and a treasurer. From 1953 to 1955 a Steering Committee conducted the business of the WHR, but then gave way to a Council and Executive Committee that were formed during the First Western Hemisphere Conference on Planned Parenthood held in San Juan, Puerto Rico, in 1955.

The Council was comprised of WHR officers and IPPF Council members from the region. The Executive Committee consisted of a small number of Council members and largely managed budget and affairs of the region. The WHR included various committees, such as Field Work, Campaign, Publishing, Nominating, Finance, Allocation, and Resolution committees, and numerous ad hoc committees. In 1960, WHR member Hugh Moore established the World Population Emergency Campaign (WPEC) as a fund-raising vehicle operating under the auspices of the WHR. Funds collected by the WPEC were allocated for use by the WHR.

The WHR worked within the region to stimulate the formation of new planned parenthood organizations; assist in scientific research; organize international conferences, meetings and seminars in the region; and raise funds. The WHR focused its resources on Central and South America, the Caribbean, and Puerto Rico, areas where Catholic opposition to contraceptive services was greatest.

Margaret Sanger served as president of the WHR from 1953 to 1955, was a council member until the early 1960s, and served on the Executive Committee until the late 1950s. She played a major leadership role in the WHR, hand-picking the Steering Committee and insuring through the WHR's ties to the MSRB that the WHR would remain largely under the influence of her leadership.

Work Program Committee/Program Committee/Management and Planning Committee: Consisted of Governing Body members responsible for drafting agendas of future work plans and prioritizing the Federation's many projects.

The IPPF included numerous other committees, ad hoc committees, and subcommittees, many of which were short-lived or formed to work on conference arrangements. These included the Credentials Committee, Headquarters Changes Committee, Conference Resolution Committee, Conference Steering Committee, and Research Committee.

JOINT COMMITTEE OF THE BIRTH CONTROL CLINICAL RESEARCH BUREAU AND THE AMERICAN BIRTH CONTROL LEAGUE (1938–1939)

In June of 1938, the American Birth Control League (ABCL) and Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau (BCCRB) formed a Joint Committee to consider closer coordination of all research, teaching, field organization, clinical work, and educational activities of the League and the Bureau. This effort was aimed at countering financial problems faced by both the League and the BCCRB as donors split their contributions between the two organizations and as competition over clinic affiliations and disagreements about lobbying activities between the two groups intensified. The Committee's goal was to develop a program that would provide for greater efficiency in service and administration of clinics and state organizations and to consider the feasibility of a merger.

Several meetings between representatives of the two organizations as well as the National Committee on Women's Health and the management firm, John Price Jones, Inc., led to fact-finding studies and a "Summarized Factual Report with Analysis and Conclusions" submitted by D. Kenneth Rose of John Price Jones, Inc. and George Aubrey Hastings. The report found that considerable duplication of work of the two organizations existed in every branch of their activities.

Based on this report, the Committee's final recommendation was for a complete merger. On January 19, 1939, the two organizations officially merged into the Birth Control Federation of America. The Committee approved a slate of new officers, with Richard N. Pierson as chairman and president pro tem. Margaret Sanger was consigned to the limited role of honorary chairman of the board of directors.

Organizational Structure:

The Joint Committee consisted of thirteen members, assisted by representatives of the management firm of John Price Jones, Inc.

Members of the Joint Committee:

Bangs, Catherine Clement
Blagden, Mabel Whitney
Blodgett, Marguerite
Brush, Dorothy Hamilton
Colgate, Gilbert
Dickinson, Robert Latou
Holden, Frederick C.
Pierson, Richard N.—Chairman, John Price Jones, Inc.
Potter, Rose
Rose, D. Kenneth
Sanger, Margaret
Stone, Abraham
Suarez, Evelyn
Wile, Ira Solomon

BCCRB for records related to the Bureau's activities prior to the merger

Note on sources:
The Collected Documents Series and the Library of Congress microfilm contain only a few records and limited correspondence related to the merger. More extensive meeting minutes, press releases, and reports of the Joint Committee are located in the Smith College Collections Series, which also contains relevant correspondence concerning the merger.

THE MARGARET SANGER RESEARCH BUREAU (1940–1962)

The Margaret Sanger Research Bureau (MSRB) began as the Clinical Research Bureau in 1923, which operated under the direction of the American Birth Control League (ABCL). In 1928, Sanger resigned as president of the ABCL and assumed full control of the clinic, renaming it the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau (BCCRB). The BCCRB reunited with the ABCL in a 1939 merger that created the Birth Control Federation of America—changed to Planned Parenthood Federation of America (PPFA) in 1942—but retained much of its independence. In 1940, the clinic changed its name to the MSRB in honor of its founder.

Under the guidelines of the 1939 merger, the MSRB was only loosely affiliated with PPFA until the mid-1950s, when budget deficits forced the Bureau to more closely align its services with the work of the Federation in exchange for financial assistance. The Bureau assisted with PPFA fund-raising, accommodated an increased number of PPFA board members on its board of trustees, and became the clinical research arm of the PPFA. In return PPFA covered the Bureau's growing annual deficits and supported individual doctors and researchers on the Bureau staff with grants. The Bureau continued to struggle with its finances in the 1960s, prompting an affiliation with Columbia University in 1968. However, in 1974 rising costs forced the Bureau to shut down its 17 West 16th Street building and combine its staff with Planned Parenthood of New York City in a new facility on Second Avenue called the Margaret Sanger Center in New York. In 1992, Planned Parenthood of New York City moved to the corner of Bleecker and Mulberry Streets, a site renamed Margaret Sanger Square.

From 1940, when the Bureau changed its name, until 1962, the last year of Sanger's involvement with the MSRB, the Bureau provided comprehensive contraceptive services for women and couples and became the largest combined birth control and fertility center in the world. The diaphragm and spermicidal jelly was the Bureau's most prescribed method of birth control, although the shortage of rubber during World War II accelerated MSRB-sponsored research and testing of other contraceptives, including intrauterine devices, though they were not widely used until the 1960s. By 1961, the Bureau was also offering the anovulant pill to its patients. While the Bureau did not perform abortions until 1973, it did run an Overdue Clinic that diagnosed and counselled pregnant women and referred patients to local hospitals and private doctors for medical care and in some cases legal therapeutic abortions. However, the Bureau took care to make it clear that its staff would provide no assistance if a woman requested an abortion.

After Medical Director Hannah Stone's death in 1941, Abraham Stone, her husband and successor, altered and expanded the MSRB to accommodate his growing interest and expertise in the field of infertility. In 1945, Stone inaugurated a Fertility Service that offered counselling, testing, and treatment for infertile couples. He expanded the Bureau's Marriage Consultation Service and steered the Research Department into a greater emphasis on infertility studies. While the Bureau continued to be associated with its contraceptive services, the number of users dropped steadily in the postwar years as contraception became more widely available through private physicians. However, the Bureau grew as a teaching center, offering seminars, research projects, and clinical work for visiting doctors, nurses, and medical students. In addition to its medical and research programs, the Bureau also offered a fellowship program for gynecologists and obstetricians for intensive training in birth control technique.

Margaret Sanger, the founder and director of the Bureau, withdrew from day-to-day MSRB affairs in the 1940s, spending most of her time in semiretirement at her home in Tucson. As director, she continued to make many of the budgetary and personnel decisions but left most matters regarding the daily operation of the Bureau in the hands of the executive secretary and medical director. Though she disagreed with how the Clinic had evolved under Abraham Stone's leadership and sought to diminish the growing prominence of the Fertility Service, she continued to raise funds for the MSRB. In 1950 Sanger turned over even more control to Stone, naming him director and selling him the West 16th Street building, but she remained on the board of trustees and continued to offer Stone her counsel.

Organizational Structure, Major Departments and Committees:

Board of Managers/Trustees: Consisted of the director, medical director, several physicians, benefactors, and usually two or more members of PPFA's Board of Directors. The Board advised on all aspects of the Bureau's operations, supervised budgetary matters and personnel decisions, and represented the MSRB in the medical community.

Contraceptive Service: All new Bureau patients received an orientation lecture and medical examination. Physicians prescribed contraceptives in accordance with individual needs. The Bureau also offered a Safe Period Service for patients interested in the rhythm method and a Diagnostic Service or Overdue Clinic to determine if women experiencing delayed menstrual periods were pregnant. They were interviewed, examined, and diagnosed only. If necessary they were referred to a private physician or local hospital.

Education Department: Provided a Training Service consisting of lectures demonstrations, seminars, and research projects for visiting doctors, nurses, medical students, and social workers. The Department also gave organized lectures and screenings of films for patients and staff, distributed literature on birth control and fertility, including a suggested readings list, and oversaw the Bureau's library.

Fertility Service: Starting in 1945, patients with fertility problems referred by their physician or a public health agency received an orientation lecture, an examination, testing, and possibly some form of treatment. Certain treatments including artificial insemination were performed at the clinic. Endocrinological and psychotherapeutic services were also available for cases of glandular dysfunction and emotional problems associated with infertility. The Fertility Service department also included a Preconception Service that offered exams and counselling for couples planning to conceive.

Marriage Consultation Services: Offered both group and individual counseling sessions before and after marriage. A "Premarital Service" provided lectures and group discussions dealing with social, physical, and psychological aspects of marriage and the family. The Marital Problems Service offered consultations for married couples primarily with sexual problems and was merged in 1953 with the Marriage Consultation Center of the Community Church of New York.

Medical (and Scientific) Administrative Committee: Consisted of MSRB and PPFA board members organized in 1955 to negotiate cooperative research projects between the two organizations and report on new medical findings. The name of the Committee changed several times in the 1950s and 1960s.

Research Department: Carried out research on all aspects of human fertility and performed clinical testing on new contraceptive products. After World War II, the Bureau concentrated on infertility research.

Staff: The core staff consisted of a director, medical director, associate medical director(s), a medical consultant, full- and part-time physicians (from ten in 1940 to thirty in the early 1950s, including gynecologists, urologists, endocrinologists, psychiatrists, and a cytologist), nine or ten nurses, social worker(s), lab technicians, an executive secretary, a treasurer, and ten to twelve clerical and part-time employees.

(Many other committees operated for various periods of time between 1940 and 1962, including the Budget and Finance, Fund-raising, Nominating, Personnel, New Directions, Administration, Associates, and Theater Benefit committees.)

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE ON FEDERAL LEGISLATION FOR BIRTH CONTROL (1929–1937)

In November of 1928, the Illinois Birth Control League elected Margaret Sanger as temporary chairman of a new legislative committee organized to lobby for an amendment to the federal anti-obscenity laws that would legalize the distribution of contraceptives and contraceptive information through the mails. In the months that followed, Sanger and several supporters formulated plans to expand the Illinois League's proposed program into a national campaign, with headquarters in the Midwest. On April 30, 1929, following the annual meeting of the Illinois Birth Control League, Sanger formally ratified plans for the formation of a National Committee on Federal Legislation for Birth Control (NCFLBC), structured into four regions: East, South, Middle West, and West, and further divided by congressional districts. Committee organizers in Chicago elected Sanger national chairman and set an agenda for the election of additional officers and congressional district chairman.

Margaret Sanger served as the national chairman of the NCFLBC until it was incorporated in 1932, at which time she was named president. From 1929 until 1935, she concentrated her efforts on Committee work, shuttling between New York, where she continued to run the BCCRB, and Washington, D.C., where permanent NCFLBC headquarters were established in 1933. She also made frequent speaking tours throughout the country on behalf of the NCFLBC and organized several national conferences.

The NCFLBC set out to conduct a nationwide lobbying campaign using the pressure of public opinion to convince congressional representatives to sponsor or vote for an amendment to Section 211 and other sections of the Federal Penal Code, which classified contraceptive information and supplies as obscene material and made it unlawful to import contraceptives or send contraceptive information through the mails. The Committee's other primary goals were to educate the public about birth control and the need to amend the federal laws and to secure the endorsements of medical associations, religious institutions, social welfare groups, and other prominent organizations in the country.

The Committee's Washington office opened in the fall of 1929 with a small but committed staff that included several seasoned Washington lobbyists, who often worked in conjunction with the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau (BCCRB) staff in New York, where Sanger initially set up NCFLBC headquarters. The leadership of the Committee, consisting of Sanger and several veterans of the American Birth Control League, coordinated lobbying activities and outreach programs, including a sophisticated press campaign. By the end of 1929, the NCFLBC had nine officers, ninety-one chairmen, and over 3,000 members.

NCFLBC staff, through tireless lobbying, convinced a handful of congressmen between 1929 and 1936 to sponsor legislation that would amend the anti–birth control measures of the Federal Penal Code. Several versions of these amendments, both a "Doctor's Bill" and a "States Rights Bill," went before various House and Senate committees during the seven years of the Committee's existence. Sanger and other Committee members, along with medical and legal experts and religious leaders, testified in favor of the proposed amendments and testified against several anti–birth control bills that were also introduced but made little progress in Congress. Birth control legislation was seen as a liability by many congressmen no matter which way they voted. A majority of Congress wanted to ignore the issue and shut their doors to Sanger and National Committee lobbyists. Furthermore, the Catholic Church assembled a vocal anti–birth control campaign and marshalled significant opposition to the NCFLBC through its own congressional lobbying. While a total of ten bills were sponsored and six congressional hearings were held, only one Senate bill (S.1842) made it out of committee to a floor vote, where it passed but was immediately recalled.

The NCFLBC met greater success with its educational campaigns. Relying on its vast network of regional committees, the Committee organized over 1500 lectures around the country, held regional and local conferences, conducted extensive mail campaigns (an estimated 500,000 outgoing letters), released hundreds of circulars and flyers, and flooded the press with frequent releases, radio broadcasts, and educational materials. The Committee succeeded in winning endorsements from close to 1000 regional, state, and local organizations, including the American Civil Liberties Union, the American Association of University Women, the American Gynecological Society, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches.

Unable to make headway in Congress, Sanger turned to the courts. In 1936, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second District rendered a historic decision in U.S. v. One Package, a test case instigated by Sanger in 1933 that challenged the legality of the confiscation by customs officials of a package of pessaries sent from Japan to Dr. Hannah Stone at the BCCRB. In his decision, Justice Augustus Hand asserted the rights of the physician in the legitimate use of contraceptives and eradicated the restrictions prohibiting the importation, sale, or carriage by mail of contraceptive materials and information for medical purposes. Sanger publicized the decision widely, sending announcements to doctors throughout the country. Claiming victory for the NCFLBC, she disbanded the organization in April of 1937 in a victorious and celebratory spirit, obscuring the general inability of the NCFLBC to effect legislative change.

Organizational Structure, Major Departments and Committees:

Advisory Committees: Medical and Legal Advisory Committees helped to formulate the proposed amendments to the Federal Penal Code, assisted with testimony given before congressional committees, advised on strategy in the U.S. v. One Package case, and were consulted on many other matters, including the dissolution of the Committee in 1937.

Board of Directors: The national chairman/president served along with up to nine directors who were elected by the Active Members and managed the general affairs of the organization, including personnel and salaries. The Board of Directors also adopted and amended the bylaws.

Congressional Committee: Consisted of Board of Directors and Active Members who helped draft the birth control bills and supervised the congressional lobbying campaigns.

Educational Department: Established in February of 1935 to supervise press relations and publicity campaigns and furnish written material for magazine and newspaper articles. The Department also ran an information service and library and book service.

Executive Committee: A dual NCFLBC/BCCRB committee established in 1935 to help manage the affairs of both organizations while Sanger was abroad. The Executive Committee worked in concert with the Board of Directors.

Field Work: Consisted of lobbying activities and educational work (lectures, meetings, interviews). Field workers were sent out by Washington headquarters staff or worked within a region to educate the membership, attract new members, and lobby congressional representatives. The number of field workers varied from a few to more than a dozen.

Headquarters: From 1929 until 1933, the BCCRB in New York served as the national headquarters. An office was opened in Washington in 1929 and the national headquarters was officially moved there in 1933. A small staff conducted the national education campaigns, public relations, and lobbying activities and supervised regional education and lobbying work, also referred to as field work. The number of staff changed frequently, from four or five to a high of fourteen or fifteen, and generally consisted of a legislative secretary, publication director, field workers (lobbyists), and various administrative staff.

Membership: There were three categories of membership: Active Members had voting rights and were elected by the Board of Directors; Contributing Members made a contribution of a dollar or more; and Endorsing Members signed a petition or endorsed the work of the Committee in writing. An annual meeting was held for all Active Members.

New York Office (BCCRB): The BCCRB served as the organizational headquarters until 1933. The BCCRB assisted with field work and educational activities primarily in the New York area and helped to coordinate Sanger's work. Several BCCRB administrative staff also worked for the NCFLBC, including Sanger's secretaries. The Board of Managers of the BCCRB served as an auxiliary committee to the NCFLBC in 1932 to advise and help with fund-raising. The BCCRB's Motherhood Advice Bureau responded to the inquiries that came into the NCFLBC regarding birth control and sexuality.

Officers: National chairman/president, several vice chairmen/vice-presidents, a secretary, and a treasurer.

Regions: Each region (East, West, Middle West, and South) was placed under the direction of a regional chairman who appointed state and congressional district chairmen. District chairmen were responsible for organizing public sentiment and lobbying congressional representatives. Regions often held their own conferences, meetings, and educational and lobbying campaigns.

The NCFLBC also included several other committees organized for fund-raising campaigns and conferences.

The Library of Congress microfilm contains the largest collection of NCFLBC organizational records (reels 40–111), including minutes, assorted reports, personnel files, and a voluminous states file, and is the best source for locating material on the regions and congressional districts, as well as endorsing organizations. The Collected Documents Series has a small assortment of Committee publications, including form letters, reports and other material, as well as some correspondence with Committee members. The Smith College Collections Series contains incomplete minutes, numerous reports (annual, summary, congressional), form letters, newsletters, and publications, as well as correspondence related to the NCFLBC, including Sanger's letters to and from staff, officers, chairmen, congressional representatives, and officials of endorsing organizations. See also correspondence between Sanger and George Aubrey Hastings of Tamblyn and Tamblyn (a consulting firm that assisted with NCFLBC fund-raising), and Guy Irving Burch of the Population Reference Bureau who assisted with the congressional campaign.

NEW YORK BIRTH CONTROL LEAGUE (1916–1918)

Established in December 1916, the New York Birth Control League[8] (NYBCL) was organized in the wake of Margaret Sanger's October arrest for opening the Brownsville Clinic, the nation's first birth control clinic. In addition to providing support for Sanger's legal battles, the League's goals were to secure an amendment to state and federal laws that would allow physicians and registered nurses to dispense contraceptives; and to advocate and encourage birth control as a means of safeguarding women's health and promoting social welfare. The League competed for funding and publicity with Mary Ware Dennett's National Birth Control League, also based in New York.

Frederick Blossom, a young Socialist Party worker from Cleveland, organized the League while serving as managing editor of Sanger's journal, The Birth Control Review. Using the same Fifth Avenue office as the Review, the League raised money for Sanger's defense fund and helped organize the Carnegie Hall mass meeting held on January 28, 1917, the eve of Sanger's trial. The League appears to have also contributed funds and staff time to the Review, which published its first issue in February of 1917. It also distributed booklets and other educational literature, but there is little evidence to suggest that it accomplished any other significant work.

Though it was organized for her benefit, Margaret Sanger never actually belonged to the League. By the summer of 1917, in fact, Sanger became its chief antagonist when she accused Blossom of taking Birth Control Review revenues along with account books and lists of subscribers. Blossom, who was in charge of the Review's books while also serving as president and then treasurer of the League, could not account for the missing funds but angrily denied any wrongdoing and publicly attacked Sanger's credibility. An investigation by a committee of Socialist Party members exonerated Blossom, but Sanger rejected the committee's report, claiming it was biased and incompetent. Nevertheless, she dropped the charges. The League probably disbanded sometime in 1918.

Organizational Structure and Committees:

The League consisted of a president, two vice-presidents, a secretary, a treasurer, a finance committee, and a Margaret Sanger Defense Committee. It is not clear how frequently the NYBCL convened meetings or to what extent the officers contributed to the League's program.

NYBCL Officers and Staff:

Blossom, Frederick A.—President; Treasurer
Fruchter, Henry I.—Administrative Assistant/Secretary
Goldstein, Jonah J.—Treasurer
Goldstein, Rev. Sidney E.—Vice-President
Greene, Louise A.—Treasurer

[8]This organization was formally titled the Birth Control League of New York but was almost always referred to as the New York Birth Control League by Sanger and by its members.

Hope, Augusta P.—Chairman, Finance Committee
Hunt, M. Louise—Secretary
Myers, Hiram—Treasurer; Assistant Treasurer
Stone, Mrs. Eugene—President
Stuyvesant, Elizabeth—Secretary
Todd, Helen—Vice-President

Note on sources:
Surviving records of the New York Birth Control League are scarce. The Collected Documents Series includes correspondence from Sanger to members of the Socialist Party and to supporter Juliet Rublee in which she discusses the League and the Blossom affair. Issues of the Birth Control Review for 1917 and 1918 contain references to the League and fund-raising notices for the Margaret Sanger Defense Fund. The Smith College Collections Series contains two 1916 press releases that refer to initial interest on the part of Sanger and Blossom in starting such an organization but does not contain any records of the League itself. The Library of Congress microfilm includes two files of correspondence related to the League, including letters between Blossom and Sanger, and Blossom and Jonah J. Goldstein (Sanger's attorney in the Brownsville Clinic trials and a treasurer of the League), among others.

THE PLANNED PARENTHOOD FEDERATION OF AMERICA (1942–1962)

At a special membership meeting on January 29, 1942, the Birth Control Federation of America (BCFA) changed its name to Planned Parenthood Federation of America (PPFA). The BCFA was established in 1939 through a merger of the American Birth Control League and the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau engineered by the management firm of John Price Jones, Inc. The name change reflected a redefinition of the organization's goals from family limitation to child spacing. While PPFA continued to function as the largest birth control organization in the country, it sought to position itself as a more mainstream and moderate organization committed to a broad range of programs related to reproductive health.

Under the leadership of National Director D. Kenneth Rose of the John Price Jones Company, the PPFA expanded its programs and services through the 1940s, adding affiliate organizations throughout the country. By the end of the Second World War, the Federation was no longer solely a center for birth control services or a clearinghouse for contraceptive information but had emerged as a major national health organization. PPFA's programs included a full range of family planning services, including marriage education and counseling, and infertility services. The leadership of PPFA, largely consisting of businessmen and male physicians, endeavored to incorporate its contraceptive services unofficially into regional and national public health programs by emphasizing less politicized aspects, such as child spacing. During the 1950s, the Federation further adjusted its programs and message to appeal to a family-centered, more conservative postwar populace, while continuing to function, through its affiliated clinics, as the most reliable source of contraceptives in the country.

From 1942 until 1962, the last year of Sanger's active participation in the birth control movement, PPFA concentrated its efforts on strengthening its ties to affiliates, expanding public education programs, and improving its medical and research work. It continued to operate a Negro Service and other rural health projects in the South through the early 1940s and, working in conjunction with the Margaret Sanger Research Bureau (MSRB) and regional agencies, tested new contraceptives in the field. PPFA also gave financial assistance to the MSRB in return for the use of research facilities and its participation in cooperative research projects. By 1960, visitors to PPFA centers across the nation numbered over 300,000 per year. That number increased by a third in 1961 when the anovulant pill was introduced in most of the affiliated clinics. However, PPFA was not able to increase the number of its clinics in those years.

PPFA began focusing greater attention on global population issues in the 1950s as new concerns arose over the political, social, and cultural implications of overpopulation in Asia and other parts of the world and became active in international birth control work through its membership in the International Planned Parenthood Federation (IPPF), which Margaret Sanger helped to found in 1952. National interest in population problems, spurred by the Draper report in 1959 (recommending U.S. assistance to foreign governments seeking population reductions) and the 1960 presidential elections, prompted PPFA to devote even more of its resources to international work, enlarge its training programs for visiting foreign doctors, and send field workers outside the United States. In 1961, the population-crisis debate, along with funding shortages, convinced PPFA to merge with the World Population Emergency Campaign (WPEC), a citizens' fund-raising organization that grew out of the IPPF-Western Hemisphere Region.

In changing its name to PPFA, the Federation signalled its shift away from Sanger's feminist focus on women's quest for reproductive freedom. Though she objected to the abandonment of "birth control," a term she identified in name and spirit as reflective of women's empowerment and characterized the organization as complacent and overly cautious, Margaret Sanger did agree to serve as the honorary president of PPFA. She also served on the board of directors and, until the mid-1950s, on the Long Range Planning Committee. Sanger still constituted the primary link between the PPFA and many of its major financial contributors. However, her work with PPFA focused largely on efforts to develop an oral contraceptive pill (Sanger helped arrange funding for much of the early research on the anovulant pill) and on PPFA's international work. Not until the mid-1960s did PPFA reassert its primary commitment to championing women's reproductive rights.

Organizational Structure, Major Departments, and Committees:[9]

Affiliates (Membership): State and local planned parenthood organizations which were certified by the Federation. PPFA required that the constitution, bylaws, and policy of an Affiliate organization be consistent with that of the Federation. Each Affiliate appointed two delegates to represent it at all member meetings, including the annual membership meeting. Affiliates received a variety of assistance from the Federation—depending on their staff size and budgets—including educational materials, visits from field workers, and program proposals. Rules and regulations governing Affiliate members and the process of affiliation changed periodically and resulted in a fluctuating number of Affiliates. The Federation also encouraged various forms of individual membership.

[9]The bylaws governing the activities and structure of the organization and the number of members on certain committees changed frequently over time, and many of the departments and committees were not in existence for the entire time span, 1942–1962.

Board of Directors: Usually consisted of between forty-five and seventy-five state representatives and directors-at-large who were responsible for the management of the Federation, including the appointment of officers, the adoption of the annual budget, and the supervision of the national director and committees.

Budget and Finance Committee: Approximately nine or ten members, including several officers, directors, and appropriate committee chairmen who recommended an annual budget and were responsible for investing the Federation's funds.

Clergymen's Advisory Committee: National Committee that coordinated relations between PPFA and the religious community. Specifically, the Committee worked with the National Council of Churches, the Central Conference of American Rabbis, and the World Council of Churches, among other groups. The Committee also assisted in developing educational materials and issued public statements on religious support for family planning.

Executive Committee: Approximately ten members, usually including directors, several officers, and committee chairmen who managed the organization and retained the powers of the Board of Directors between directors' meetings.

Field Committee: Delegates representing each Affiliate member. The Committee coordinated relations between the Federation and its affiliates, reviewed policies governing affiliation, and recommended new members to the Board of Directors.

Field Department/Field Service: Field workers primarily visited local committees and state leagues to help improve and develop their programs. The Department also coordinated field work projects such as the Negro Project and other rural health projects, including work with migrant workers; and supervised committees such as the Clergymen's Committee, the Committee on Work with Negroes, and the Social Work Advisory Committee.

Fund Raising Committee/Campaign Committee: Approximately seven members, including the Budget and Finance Committee chairman and officers and directors who coordinated the Federation's annual fund-raising campaign.

Human Fertility: Published articles about research on contraception, sterility, and other biological aspects of reproduction. The journal was initially published from 1935 until 1939 by the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau under the title Journal of Contraception. The journal was discontinued in 1945.

Long Range Planning Committee: Developed the program of the organization, working closely with the other committees, along with providing proposals for revisions to the bylaws and constitution.

Medical Committee: Medical professionals ranging in number from approximately twelve to twenty-five who were responsible for developing all phases of the medical program, including formation of medical procedures and policy, the formulation of a research program, and the appointment of a medical director and National Medical Council. The Committee also worked to win the endorsements of and improve relations with national medical organizations.

Medical Council/National Medical Advisory Council: Considered issues of broad policy and advised the Federation on specific medical problems.

Medical Department: Under the direction of the Medical Committee and medical director carried out educational campaigns in medical and nursing schools and public health departments, field demonstrations and testing of new contraceptive products, and the development of educational materials on contraception and infertility, among other work.

National Advisory Council: A small group of prominent citizens organized to advise PPFA and improve the public image of birth control. The Council was disbanded and replaced by the Medical Advisory Council shortly after the Federation changed its name in 1942.

Nominating Committee: Approximately five members (including at least two directors) who were responsible for nominations to the Board of Directors.

Public Information Department/Publicity/Education: Provided news releases, scripts, articles, pamphlets, and other educational material for the general public and the press; assisted local committees and state leagues with securing speakers; produced educational films, exhibits, and public outreach programs; and handled public relations problems.

Research Committee/Biologic Research Committee/Social Research Committee: Experts in their field who proposed and helped supervise various research projects and allocated funds for research conducted outside of the Federation. The research committees also organized symposiums and conferences.

Special Projects Department: Coordinated the Negro Project (Division of Negro Service), which supervised demonstration projects in black communities in the South including Berkeley County, North Carolina, and Nashville, Tennessee; and worked to publicize health problems of African Americans and the scarcity of contraceptive services in black communities. The Special Projects Department also organized the Clergymen's Committee and supervised the Public Progress Committee, which undertook letter writing campaigns and funded specific programs at the Federation. The Department was phased out in 1943 when its chief administrator, Florence Rose, left the Federation.

Staff and Officers: A national director, medical director, approximately nine officers, and a small administrative staff that fluctuated in number. The national director was responsible for the administration, interpretation, and development of the Federation's program; for personnel decisions; and for overseeing much of the fund-raising. The medical director was responsible for developing medical programs in accordance with the Medical Committee. The officers generally consisted of an honorary chairman, a chairman of the Board of Directors, a president (later changed to chairman), vice-presidents (varied in number; later changed to vice-chairman), a secretary, and a treasurer.

PPFA's organization structure included many other smaller and short-term committees and councils, including Annual Meeting, Nurses, Personnel, Post-War, International, By-Laws Revision, Lasker Awards, Travel, Manuals and Policy Revision, Minorities, Directorship, Headquarters, Review, Affiliates, Public Relations, PPFA-MSRB, and Study Committees, among others.

Note on sources:
The Collected Documents Series has a small collection of PPFA records including minutes and form letters, as well as correspondence with PPFA officers. The Smith College Collections Series contains a larger number of PPFA records, including minutes, reports, form letters, organizational memos, and publications. This Series also contains Sanger's correspondence with PPFA officers and directors, funders, and other relevant parties. The Library of Congress microfilm contains a smaller collection of PPFA records, mostly concentrated between 1942 and the early-1950s. The records of the PPFA for this period, of which only a small number were included in this edition, are located at the Sophia Smith Collection, Smith College.

THE WORLD POPULATION EMERGENCY CAMPAIGN (1960–1961)

The World Population Emergency Campaign (WPEC), a private organization administered by the International Planned Parenthood Federation (IPPF), was set up for the purpose of alerting Americans to the danger of the "world population explosion" and raising money for international birth control programs. Its founding conference held on March 20, 1960, in Princeton, New Jersey, was organized by Hugh Moore, founder of the Dixie Cup Corporation and an IPPF council member, and by General William H. Draper Jr., whose well-publicized 1959 presidential report recommended that the federal government assist nations seeking to control their population growth.

With the use of the slogan, "Not just another cause, but the problem of our time," WPEC worked to publicize the potential perils arising from rapid world population growth. Through advertisements in the New York Times, meetings with business leaders in various cities, and mass mailings signed respectively by Margaret Sanger and novelist James A. Michener, WPEC also worked to raise funds for IPPF–Western Hemisphere Region projects. Through the IPPF–Western Hemisphere Region's Allocation Committee, the WPEC funds were distributed to such organizations as the Family Planning Association of India for a mobile field clinic; the IPPF Far Eastern Region for the training of Indonesian doctors; and the Margaret Sanger Research Bureau in New York City for free distribution abroad of birth control [illegible]re and devices.

Margaret Sanger was not involved with the daily activities of the WPEC; rather, her primary role was as a fund-raiser. In addition to lending her name to its mass mailings, she counseled the leadership of WPEC on fund-raising strategies and public relations. Drafts of proposed form letters reveal her efforts to diminish the WPEC's attempts to appeal to Americans' fears of "communist exploitation" in overpopulated countries. WPEC's largest fund-raising event was the Margaret Sanger World Tribute held in New York City on May 11–12, 1961, the forty-fifth anniversary of Sanger's opening of the Brownsville Clinic. With this conference and dinner chaired by Sir Julian Huxley, the Tribute fund immediately exceeded its $100,000 goal. Sanger's attendance was her last major public appearance.

WPEC operated independently for just over a year before it agreed to a merger with the Planned Parenthood Federation of America (PPFA) in the fall of 1961. Although the PPFA added WPEC to its name and invited Campaign members to serve on its board, the merger had little effect on PPFA operations, save that it increased the funds available for PPFA's international efforts in conjunction with IPPF. It was, however, a short-lived enterprise; by 1963, PPFA dropped WPEC from its official name.

Organizational Structure and Committees:

Margaret Sanger Tribute Committee: Consisted of Steering Committee members who organized the World Tribute to honor Sanger in 1961.

National Committee: Composed of the original members of the Steering Committee along with prominent donors.

Projects Committee (Projects and Allocations Committee): Comprised of members of the Steering Committee, the Projects Committee evaluated requests for funds submitted to the WPEC before they were brought before the Steering Committee.

Steering Committee: Consisted of a chair, three vice-chairs, a treasurer, and a secretary. The Steering Committee oversaw the operation of WPEC and was primarily concerned with fund-raising and public relations.

Other committees included Budget and Finance and Fund-raising.

Note on sources:
The Collected Documents Series contains scattered material concerning the WPEC, including correspondence with WPEC organizer Hugh Moore. The Library of Congress microfilm does not contain any WPEC records and very little documentation on PPFA after 1956. The Smith College Collections Series has a larger collection of WPEC minutes, organizational memos, publications, reports, and form letters. An incomplete set of WPEC records, not all of them microfilmed, can be found among Sanger's papers at the Sophia Smith Collection, Smith College.

VIII. Reel Descriptions

A. Subseries 1: Correspondence—Reels C01–C11

Correspondence: November 1911–December 1921 (Reel C01)

Correspondence covering Sanger's early work with the Socialist Party, the suppression of The Woman Rebel, her indictment, her activities while in exile and, upon her 1915 return to the United States, her efforts to organize her defense. The correspondence further documents Sanger's efforts to launch the Birth Control Review, its struggling early years, and her dispute with Frederick Blossom; her association with Marie Stopes; her rivalry with Mary Ware Dennett; and the emergence of her close friendship with Juliet Rublee. The letters also deal with Sanger's tubercular-related health problems and the surgery that finally cured her, and offer accounts of her 1920 and 1921 trips to Europe; her relations with the Wantley circle; and her courtship by J. Noah Slee.

Major Correspondents: Mary Ware Dennett, Julius Gerber, Benjamin Huebsch, Edith How-Martyn, Edward A. Ross, Juliet Rublee, Marie Stopes.

Other Correspondents: Theodore Dreiser, Hugh DeSelincourt, Max Ehrmann, Havelock Ellis, William J. Fielding, Theodore Gerson, Julia Lathrop, Adolf Meyer, Theodore Schroeder.

Correspondence: January 1922–December 1923 (Reel C02)

Correspondence concerning Sanger's trips to Japan and China in 1922 and Colorado, Washington, Alaska, and Canada in 1923 (including her methods of secretly shipping pessaries to her clinic from Canada), as well as arrangements for her various speaking engagements and lecture tours. Much of the correspondence focuses on the planning, scheduling, and follow-up to the 1923 Middle Western States Birth Control Conference. Letters to friends and colleagues also deal with Sanger's disagreements with Mary Ware Dennett and the Voluntary Parenthood League; her decision to follow a state-by-state legislative strategy; her support of the Rosenman bill; the financial problems of the ABCL and the Birth Control Review; and personnel problems within the ABCL.

Major Correspondents: Leon J. Cole, Edward M. East, Carrie Harvison-Dickey, S. Adolphus Knopf, Laura E. Jamieson, Clarence C. Little, Adolf Meyer, William F. Ogburn, Raymond Pearl, Edward A. Ross, Juliet Rublee, Mildred C. Smith, Ernest Votaw.

Other Correspondents: Ruth Albert, Luther Burbank, James F. Cooper, Harold Cox, Hugh DeSelincourt, James A. Field, William J. Fielding, John Maynard Keynes, Benjamin B. Lindsay, S. D. Schwartz, Rosika Schwimmer, Alexander M. Stephen, Norman Thomas, Eleanor R.Wembridge.

Correspondence: January 1924–December 1925 (Reel C03)

Correspondence dealing with Sanger's organization of the New York State Conference on Birth Control in Syracuse and attempts to prohibit it, as well as the refusal of Boston's mayor to allow her to give a public address; Sanger's work on soliciting speakers and papers for the 1925 Sixth International Neo-Malthusian and Birth Control Conference including her attempts to gauge interest in organizing a program on sterilization; and her reorganization and expansion of the clinical research work of the BCCRB and cooperation with the Maternity Research Council. Also includes letters regarding Sanger's attempts to secure clemency for Carlo Tresca; her opposition to the Voluntary Parenthood League's efforts to push for a federal anticensorship bill; Juliet Rublee's trip to England and the death of her mother; and a series of published and unpublished "client" letters.

Major Correspondents: Leon J. Cole, James F. Cooper, Robert L. Dickinson, Adolf Meyer, Raymond Pearl, Juliet Rublee, Rosika Schwimmer.

Other Correspondents: Roger Baldwin, Katherine B. Davis, W. E. B. DuBois, S. Adolphus Knopf, Hudson Maxim, H. L. Mencken, Narayan S. Phadke, Rabindranath Tagore.

Correspondence: January 1926–December 1929 (Reel C04)

Correspondence regarding Sanger's organizing of the 1928 World Population Conference in Geneva and publishing the proceedings; arrangements for her lecture tours and James Cooper's organizing trips; death of her sister, Mary Higgins (January 1926) and her efforts to arrange for a federal pension for her father, Michael Higgins; Sanger's reaction to the dismissal of Anne Kennedy from the ABCL; her own differences with the ABCL Board (including her letter of resignation) and her decision to separate the BCCRB from the ABCL; preparation and distribution of Motherhood in Bondage; and efforts to organize and raise funds for 1930 World Population Conference in Berlin. Other letters pertain to her efforts to get license for Maternity Research Council; Sanger's sponsorship of Marie Kopp's study of 10,000 clinic records; her reactions to Juliet Rublee's Mexican film; and accounts of her travels to London, Berlin, Geneva, St. Moritz, and Hot Springs. Also includes a series of published and unpublished letters from "clients" seeking birth control information, disputes with Catholic church leaders, and reactions to the 1929 raid on the BCCRB.

Major Correspondents: Rev. John J. Burke, Norman Himes, Edith How-Martyn, Anne Kennedy, Clarence C. Little, Adolf Meyer, Raymond Pearl, Juliet Rublee.

Other Correspondents: James F. Cooper, Hugh DeSelincourt, Robert L. Dickinson, John A. Hartwell, Benjamin B. Lindsay, Frieda Lubelle, Ira S. Wile.

Correspondence: January 1930–December 1935 (Reel C05)

Letters dealing with the scrutiny of BCCRB by the New York Academy of Medicine; progress on Marie Kopp's study of 10,000 case histories; Sanger's efforts to secure support for a federal birth control bill; and debates over "clean repeal" versus "doctors only" strategies. Includes correspondence regarding the Western States Conference on Birth Control and Population Problems; the Seventh International Birth Control Conference in Zurich; the H. G. Wells dinner; the Birth Control Comes of Age 21st Anniversary Dinner; and Conference on Birth Control and National Recovery. Correspondence also deals with her own and Stuart Sanger's illnesses; J. Noah Slee's post-Crash financial losses and persistent money problems; Sanger's views on events in Germany; research on foam powder contraceptives; launching of actions leading to the U.S. v. One Package case; and accounts of Sanger's travels to the Bahamas, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Tucson, London, and India (including a description of her meeting with Gandhi).

Major Correspondents: Roger Baldwin, Norman Himes, Edith How-Martyn, John A. Kingsbury, Adolf Meyer, Arthur Packard, Raymond Pearl, Walter Pierce, Juliet Rublee, Ira S. Wile.

Other Correspondents: Blanche A. Ames, Poultney Bigelow, Mary Ware Dennett, W. E. B. DuBois, Henry P. Fairchild, Ellsworth Huntington, Fannie Hurst, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Franklin D. Roosevelt, Ivan Somerville, Rabindranath Tagore, Oswald Garrison Villard, Lillian Wald.

Correspondence: January 1936–December 1939 (Reel C06)

Miscellany (1917–1948). Contains a review of Sanger's silent film BIRTH CONTROL (1917), passports, and a list of birth control pamphlets owned by Sanger.

F. Addendum Reels: All Subseries—Reel C18

The Sanger Papers Project received two additional caches of documents after the microfilming of Reel C01–C17 was completed. These documents, drawn from the Ellen Watumull Papers and the private collection of Lawrence Lader and filmed on this addendeum reel, have been organized in strict chronological order but cover the following subseries:

Correspondence (Subseries 1): 1921–1962.

Correspondence (the bulk of which was written between 1952–1959) with Ellen Watumull concerning contraceptive research; the birth control movement in India; organization and financing for the Fourth and Fifth International Conferences on Planned Parenthood; and the search for a successor to Sanger as president of the IPPF. Other topics covered include Sanger's reminiscences of J. Noah Slee and Havelock Ellis; the Lader biography; and trips to Europe (1921), Japan (1954), and Hawaii.

Major Correspondents: Ellen Jensen Watumull; Dhanvanthi Rama Rau.

Other Correspondents: Margaret Storrs Grierson; Katharine Dexter McCormick; Lawrence Lader.

Organization/Conference Records (Subseries 2): 1948–1957.

Contains an annual report of the International Committee on Planned Parenthood (1948–1952); and form letters and organizational memos regarding the organization and sponsorship of the Fourth and Fifth International Conference on Planned Parenthood.

Writings (Subseries 4): 1957–1959.

Includes drafts and transcripts of a few Sanger speeches, including "This I Believe" (1953), and Sanger's remarks on accepting the American Humanist Association Award (1957).

Miscellany (Subseries 5): 1952–1963.

Contains mostly correspondence letters, along with memos and reports on the efforts of Jonathan Schultz and Ellen Watumull to secure a Nobel Peace Prize for Margaret Sanger (1959–1960). Includes letters written by Schultz and Watumull soliciting nominations and discussing strategy and copies of the letters of nomination sent to the Nobel Committee. Also contains scattered material on the American Humanist Association Award (1957); World Tribute to Sanger (1961); Project M.S. (1959); and notes by Sanger on the Lader biography (1953).

IX. Introduction to the Index

The most detailed means of access to the collection is provided by the index to the microfilmed documents. Index entries under each heading list the date of the document, followed in parentheses by the series number in roman numerals and then in brackets by the reel and beginning frame number:

Date (Series Number) [Reel:Frame] or 05/06/939 (III) [C10:0767][11]

Each subseries of the microfilm has a separate index.

A. Subseries 1: Correspondence Index

This portion of the index is organized by personal and organizational names. To avoid unnecessary duplication, letters to or from Sanger are cited only under the name of her correspondent. Thus, documents are cited in alphabetical order by name of correspondent in three categories: 1) To Sanger, 2) From Sanger, and 3) Third-party correspondence. A letter authored or received by more than one individual is cited under each name. Documents are listed in chronological order under each name, with partially dated items listed at the end of the appropriate month or year. Undated material is cited at the end of the entry for each name.

Examples: A letter written to Sanger from Helen Keller and Polly Thomson is located in the Correspondence index under both Keller, Helen and Thomson, Polly in the section "To Margaret Sanger."

A letter written by Sanger to Keller and the American Foundation for the Blind is listed under both Keller, Helen and the American Foundation for the Blind in the section "From Margaret Sanger."

A letter written from Keller to Florence Rose that was enclosed in a letter to Sanger is listed both under Keller, Helen and Rose, Florence in the section "Third Party."

Because of the volume of correspondence written to or on behalf of the organizations Sanger founded or directed, the editors have not cited the names of Sanger-related organizations as authors or recipients in the Subseries 1: Correspondence index unless the organization is the only author or recipient. Instead, correspondence written or received on behalf of Sanger-directed birth control organizations is indexed only by its primary authors or recipients.

Examples: A letter written by Anne Kennedy, executive secretary of the American Birth Control League (ABCL), to Sanger is indexed only under Kennedy, Anne.

A letter written to Raymond Pearl by Sanger in her role as president of the ABCL is cited only in the index entry for Pearl, Raymond under the section "From Margaret Sanger."

[11]Note: All reels in the Collected Documents Series begin with the letter "C".

To identify correspondence relating to Sanger's birth control organizations, readers may refer to the Organization Histories (Section IV) to identify the years in which the organization functioned. Letters written by an individual on behalf of non-Sanger organizations are indexed under the organization's name, as well as under the individual's name.

Example: Letters written by Mary Ware Dennett (Director) and Vera P. Lane (Assistant Director) of the Voluntary Parenthood League will appear both under the Voluntary Parenthood League entry and under the entries for Dennett, Mary Ware and Lane, Vera P.

Letters in which the actual name of the author or recipient has been blocked out or in which the name could not be deciphered or is not known are indexed under the general terms: "Client," "Illegible," "Anonymous," or "Unknown."

B. Subseries 2: Organizations and Conferences Index

This index is organized by the names of the organizations founded or directed by Sanger and the conferences that Sanger organized or attended. It is arranged alphabetically by author (individual, organization, or conference name), then into subgroups by type of document (i.e., form letters, minutes, reports, publications), and within each subgroup in chronological order.

Example: To locate the minutes of a February 4, 1923, meeting of the Board of Directors of the American Birth Control League (ABCL), readers should look in the Organization Index under

ABCL Board of Directors
ABCL Minutes
02/04/1923 (III) [C12:0021]

When we have identified individual authors for Subseries 2 documents both the organization name and the individual's name are cited.

Example: If Helen Holt is the author of a Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau (BCCRB) report dated June 28, 1933, the report is cited in the Organization Index twice, under the following headings:

BCCRB
BCCRB Reports
06/28/1933 (III) [C12:0667]

Holt, Helen
BCCRB Reports
06/28/1933 (III) [C12:0667]

Documents related to publications or conferences that are authored by a sponsoring organization are indexed both under the title of the publication or conference and under the name of the sponsoring organization.

Example: The ABCL sponsored the Middle Western States Conference on Birth Control in 1923. Any form letters written on behalf of that conference are indexed both under the ABCL and the conference title.

Most organization and conference documents do not have individual recipients and therefore recipients have not been indexed for Subseries 2. Please note that abbreviations are used for all Sanger-related organizations. A key to abbreviations used for organizations may be found in Section VI.

C. Subseries 3: Legal/Government Index

This index lists the material pertaining to the legal cases and legislative bills with which Sanger was involved and is divided into legal cases organized by title and date (e.g., State of NY v. Margaret Higgins Sanger, 1916–1919) and legislative bills organized by year, term, number, and sponsor (e.g., 1935, 74th Congress, H.R. 5370, Higgins Bill). Documents are listed in chronological order under each heading.

D. Subseries 4: Writings Index

An index to all of Margaret Sanger's non-correspondence and non-organizational writing. Because the documents in this subseries were all written by Margaret Sanger, they are indexed by title and date rather than by author and date. The Writings Index has been further divided into the following categories: Diaries and Journals, Articles and Speeches, Manuscripts and Books, Pamphlets, and Statements & Miscellaneous Writings. Within each category, documents are listed alphabetically by title. Whenever possible, the editors have linked partial drafts of writings to their final versions by supplying them with the same titles. In a few instances, titles have been altered by the editors in the interests of consistency and clarity. Draft and variant versions of documents with the same title are listed in chronological order.

E. Subseries 5: Miscellany Index

An index to miscellaneous documents divided into subentries of material broadly based upon various categories and subject areas (e.g., Awards & Honors, Itineraries, Financial Materials, etc.). Within each category, documents are sorted chronologically. To locate documents in this subseries, check under the index heading for the most specific category.

Examples: To find records of a specific award or honor given to Sanger, check for the particular name of the award, such as Town Hall Club Award, or in the general category of Awards, Honors and Tributes.

For material on Sanger's travels check under Itineraries, Tours, and Posters or a subject category that might overlap with her travels, such as material on Sanger's 1954 Japan Diet Appearance.

A small number of documents that did not fit any of the broad subject categories have been filmed together under the title Miscellany on Reel 17. A reader should consult the other headings in this index before consulting these miscellaneous documents. For a full list of categories in this subseries see Section VII.

F. Index to Addendum Reel (C18)

Documents on this reel were filmed in chronological order without division into subseries. However, they are cited under the appropriate subseries headings in the index.
